(c) Washington Star

Washington — Richard A. Sprague, chief counsel to the special House Assassination Committee, Wednesday protested in writing to FBI Director Clarence Kelley about the bureau's efforts to obtain custody of bullets that were used in ballistics tests on the rifle of Lee Harvey Oswald.

The letter was sent to Kelley after Sprague learned that the FBI possesses a new bullet that was found in Dallas near the spot where President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, and that the FBI has asked the National Archives and Records Service for the original Oswald bullets to make laboratory tests.

Sprague wrote to Kelley: "It has been brought to my attention by James E. O'Neill, acting chief archivist, that the FBI has requested the test bullets from Oswald's rifle.

"I am somewhat surprised that in view of the investigation presently under way by the House of Representatives into the murder of President Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. that your bureau would not bring to the attention of the committee the underlying basis for such a request so that the matter could then be handled on a joint cooperative basis. I don't think it is appropriate for any agency of the executive branch to attempt to obtain physical evidence in the custody of National Archives without appropriate safeguards and discussion with the select committee."

The National Archives has had custody of all evidence and documents used by the Warren Commission, which investigated the Kennedy slaying, since 1966. Spokesmen for the committee said O'Neill informed Chairman Thomas Downing, D-Va., Dec. 30 that the FBI was seeking the Oswald test bullets. Sprague replied to O'Neill with two letters. The first thanked him for informing the investigators of the FBI request and asked to be advised of any future attempt by any agency to obtain any actual evidence. The second letter said, "I am requesting you maintain care and custody for our use and not permit any other agency to remove these materials."

The issue of the bullets brought to a head the first of what is expected to be a series of collisions between Sprague's investigators and the FBI about the King and Kennedy investigations. The FBI said Wednesday it needed the test bullets from Oswald's rifle to make comparisons with the new bullet that was found by a Dallas man in November 1974 but was not disclosed by him until last month. Richard Lester of Dallas told the Washington Star Wednesday he found the mangled bullet with the aid of a metal detector in the ground about 61 steps from the Texas School Book Depository — the building from which Oswald was accused of firing the shots that killed Kennedy. Asked why he did not come forward with the new bullet until now, Lester said, "Because it was on railroad property and I didn't want them to get it from me. But when I heard the investigation was being reopened I decided to make it known."

Lester's first disclosure about the Bullet was made on a talk show on Dallas radio station KRLD on Nov. 22, 1976. The discovery was then published by the Dallas Times-Herald and it was then that Lester went to the Dallas office of the FBI with the bullet.

Informed sources said the bullet is so badly mangled that it is not possible to determine the caliber. The FBI laboratory here has made exhaustive examination of the Lester bullet and now is in the position where it cannot determine whether it is pertinent to the Kennedy case without making physical comparison to the Oswald bullets now in custody of the National Archives.

Lester said he has six metal detectors. A security guard in Dallas, Lester said it is his hobby to use the detectors to try to find lost coins in parks and other places. He said he discovered the bullet near the spot where Kennedy was shot by going to the railroad overpass and walking over the ground toward the building from which Oswald fired the shots on a line of sight. He said his detector indicated metal in the ground about 61 steps in front of and to the left of the School Book Depository. The bullet, he said, was buried in about three inches of earth and appeared to him to have been mashed as if it had glanced off something.

The Oswald rifle was an Italian-made Mannlicher-Carcano rifle of 6.5-millimeter caliber. There has always been a question of how many shots were fired at Kennedy. Only two bullets were found in the aftermath of the assassination with the third bullet remaining a mystery in the case. FBI ballistics tests showed that the bullets recovered in November 1963 came from the rifle Oswald owned but it has never been ascertained whether three shots were fired or whether another gunman may have fired at the president's car from a different spot.

Since O'Neill has refused to give the FBI the original Oswald bullets and Sprague is protesting the request, the FBI is now expected to place the custody controversy before the attorney general for resolution.

The controversy erupted after the Assassination Committee failed to get unanimous consent of the House on opening day, Tuesday, to reconstitute itself in the new Congress. The motion for unanimous consent was locked by Rep. Robert E. Bauman, R-Mo. This means that the committee and its new chairman, Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., will have to use the parliamentary maneuver attempting to get the rules of the House set aside by a two-thirds vote on a resolution to reconstitute the committee.

3 committee chairmen fail to gain re-election

By Don Walton

Star Staff Writer

The unpredictable 1977 Legislature Wednesday elected Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln as its speaker, and chose Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly to lead its budget deliberations.

Those results were not unexpected — but, in a sudden thirst for change, it tossed out three committee chairmen who had not appeared to be in any major trouble in their bids for re-election.

Out went Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln as chairman of urban affairs. In came Sen. Walter George of Blair on a 26-21 vote.

Out went Sen. Cal Carsten of Avoca as revenue chairman. And in came Sen. Orval Keyes of Springfield on a 25-22 count.

Out went Sen. J. R. Murphy of South Sioux City as chairman of banking, commerce and insurance. In came Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh on a 28-19 score.

In other action, the lawmakers unanimously chose Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings as chairman of the Legislative Council's executive board, and re-elected Sen. John Savage of Omaha as chairman of the Committee on Committees.

Although Warner's bid for the chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee was the most closely watched race of the day, it is Luedtke, Marvel and Savage who form the 1977 Unicameral's leadership triumvirate.

Luedtke, who celebrated his 53rd birthday Tuesday, turned back Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island on a 26-20 vote, thus becoming the first Lincolnite in three decades to hold the speakership.

Marvel, 59, moves to his leadership post from the chairmanship of the budget unit, which he held for 16 straight years.

Savage, 71, has held his chairmanship since 1975. He was re-elected without opposition.

The Committee on Committees names members of standing committees (subject to legislative approval) and decides whether to recommend gubernatorial appointees for legislative confirmation.

The executive board generally governs legislative operations.

Named vice chairman of the board was Sen. Jack Mills of Big Springs. He kayoted Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha on a 28-19 count.

Warner, 49, a 14-year legislative veteran, bested Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha for the budget chairmanship on a 28-19 vote.

A third candidate, Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Utica, withdrew before the balloting.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln was elected chairman of the Judiciary Committee, succeeding Luedtke. Barnett defeated Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha on a 28-19 count.

Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston won the chairmanship of the Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee on a 26-21 vote, besting Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus on the third ballot.

Dworak then turned back Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney on a 31-16 vote to win the chairmanship of the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee.

Stoney later was awarded the chairmanship of the Intergovernmental Cooperation Committee in a 30-16 vote, defeating Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln.

Re-elected as committee chairmen were Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, agriculture; Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, education; Sen. Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia, government, military and veterans affairs; Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan, labor; Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora, public works, and DeCamp, legislative rules.

None of them had opposition.

Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook was unanimously named to head the Public Health and Welfare Committee.

Lincoln Sen. Luedtke wants to get bugs out

By Don Walton

Star Staff Writer

Forty years ago Wednesday, a 13-year-old junior high school student from Lincoln watched from the balcony as Nebraska's unique Unicameral Legislature opened its first session.

That student 40 years later to the day was elected speaker of the Unicameral.

Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, now 53 and a state senator since 1967, won a narrow 26-20 victory over Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island for the leadership post.

In doing so, Luedtke became the first Lincoln senator in 30 years (C. Petrus Peterson was the last) to be named speaker.

His memories of that historic day four decades ago are spotty.

"I remember standing in the balcony looking over the edge, and I can remember seeing the tops of heads," he said. "That's all I really remember about it."

Luedtke was a student at Trinity Lutheran Junior High School who developed an early interest in law and government. He now practices both.

"I came over here to watch all the time," he recalled. "Our school was in the shadow of the Capitol Building and I was over here roaming the halls all the time."

"I guess the smell of the place lasted."

Luedtke sought the speakership this year partially out of obligation. As the senator who led the Legislature into annual sessions (with voter approval) in 1971, he wants to make sure they function smoothly.

"I hope to dedicate the remaining years of my term to make this process work efficiently," he noted.

Luedtke's present plan is to call it quits as a senator after his current term expires at the end of 1978.

In order to concentrate on his duties as speaker, the senator will introduce no bills this session.

His hope is to keep the legislative machinery functioning steadily so as to avoid the pileup of bills which normally snarls the final hectic weeks of a session.

"When a bill reaches the floor, it will be my duty to get it attended to," Luedtke said. "I will seek legislative action, whether it be enacting or killing the proposal."

If lawmakers can do that, he said, the Legislature need not "get caught up at the end."

The key to success will be legislative will power and self-restraint, he noted.

His efforts to keep the process moving may make him "very unpopular" before long, Luedtke smiled. "It's just a good thing the election was today."

Luedtke has long been a leader in efforts at legislative reform.

But he is probably best known for steering correctional reform proposals through the Legislature and for championing a number of capital construction projects, including the new state office building, the University of Nebraska sports center, two new state prisons and various other NU improvements.

Some curbside parking banned

A parking ban to aid snow removal remains in effect Thursday on north and east sides of residential streets from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The parking ban is part of a snow emergency declared by Mayor Helen Boosalis Tuesday. Parking had been banned Wednesday on south and west sides of residential streets.

Parking is still banned on snow routes and bus routes (which are marked with signs) and arterials (with a speed limit of 35 miles per hour or higher), unless the street has been plowed to the curb.

If those streets are already plowed, according to police, motorists are permitted to park there.

Flag handled automatically

No, it's not magic, it's an electric flagpole. The American flag that flies in front of Lincoln's new Federal Building rises and descends each day, untouched by human hands. The first rays of the sun, and the last rays in the afternoon, trigger (via an electric eye on the building's roof) an electric motor which raises and lowers the flag. It pops out of the pole each morning and pops back in each night as these photos show. The pole cost $3,635 and saves a person from having to do the work, and the only one in Nebraska. There are 117 in use in the country.

Grain harvest is record for Russia

Moscow (AP) — The Soviet Union harvested a record grain crop of 223.8 million metric tons in 1976, Agriculture Minister Valentin K. Mesyats announced Wednesday.

Mesyats said the Soviet Union plans to boost the average annual harvest of grain to 235 million tons by 1980.

Despite the good performance, the minister said, the Soviets will fulfill their commitments to buy grain abroad. Those commitments include a minimum six-million-ton annual purchase from the United States, a minimum that U.S. officials say has already been surpassed.

The 1976 record figure compares with the previous record of 222.5 million tons in 1973 and with the disastrous 1975 figure of 140 million, a 10-year low.

Poor Soviet crops in the past led to raids on the American market, driving up domestic prices. As a consequence, the United States persuaded the Soviets to sign up for the six-million-ton annual minimum so the market would not be disturbed. The agreement, signed in 1975, runs for five years.

After talks with Soviet officials here last month, Richard E. Bell, an assistant U.S. agriculture secretary, said the Russians had already purchased 6.6 million tons of American wheat and corn from the 1976 crop and had no immediate plans to buy more. Mesyats said Wednesday that "everything is being done" to repeat and possibly better the 1976 crop this year.

Bell said he had been told the new crop looked good, but he pointed out that adverse weather conditions later in the year could cut into the final production figure.

Soviet grain crops are frequently at the mercy of dry weather or severe freezing under light snow cover. But inefficient farming methods are also blamed for some failures.

Mesyats said the 1976 sugar beet crop was 85 million tons, compared with about 83 million tons in 1973. The 1976 cotton crop was given as 8.3 million tons, about 100,000 tons short of the 1974 record.

Brazil's coffee profit is more than doubled

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (AP) — Brazil more than doubled its coffee export earnings in 1976 although the volume exported increased only by about 7%, according to figures announced Wednesday.

The Brazilian Coffee Institute said that the country earned $2.32 billion from exports of 15.6 million bags of 132 pounds each in 1976, while the previous year it earned $934.1 million with a total export of 14.6 million bags.

The Coffee Institute is a government agency that strictly regulates the flow of exports. It operates as a national cooperative, buying and selling coffee grown in Brazil.

During 1976 the institute tightly regulated exports of Brazil's sizable stocks of coffee in reserve in order to give Brazilian growers time to recover from a frost that destroyed coffee trees in Parana and other southern states in July 1975. Before the frost Parana produced about a half of Brazil's total average annual production of about 20 million bags.

It estimated that the 1976-77 harvest will be only about 13 million bags.

Mongolia tied closer to Russia

(c) Washington Star
Washington — The president of Mongolia has reported a tightening of the ties that bind his nation, lying between the Soviet Union and China, to Moscow.

Yumzhagyn Tsendenbal, who also heads the Mongolian Communist Party, said talks with the Soviets last October had created prospects for "all possible convergence of our countries in all spheres of public life."

There will be "systematic mutual consultations" on many subjects and a "broadening and deepening (of) direct ties between ministries, departments, economic organs as well as scientific and cultural institutions," Tsendenbal told his party's central committee Dec. 27.

Direct ties appear to mean control by Soviet advisers of virtually all important aspects of Mongolian life.

The closer ties mean an erosion of the limited degree of independence which the large, bleak country of 1.5 million persons attained in the 1950s and 1960s.

Snow blows east

United Press International

A winter storm left a belt of deep snow from the central plains to the upper Ohio Valley Wednesday and moved over the Appalachians into the Middle Atlantic states.

Trailing it by more than 1,000 miles, another storm began moving toward the southern plains after dropping deep snows in Arizona's high country.

Subzero cold spread over the northern and central Rockies, the West's Intermountain Plateau and the upper Mississippi Valley.

Alaska, by contrast, had relatively balmy weather. The morning low at Anchorage was 41. Fairbanks shoppers went bareheaded and gloveless Tuesday in a record high of 38. Two years ago residents of Fairbanks suffered in 56-below-zero temperatures.

Traffic accidents on snow-covered highways killed four persons in Missouri and three in Kansas. One of the Kansas victims was a man who had stopped to aid a woman whose car had run off the road. He was struck by a trailer truck that skidded on ice and slammed into the two standing automobiles.

Rangers on horseback went into the Great Smoky National Park wilderness to bring out a hiker who reportedly suffered a broken foot and had holed up in a shelter since Saturday night.

A severely frostbitten woman backpacker was rescued Tuesday by a helicopter from a snowy pass in California's high Sierra. Her male hiking partner was found dead on a trail. The pair set out 10 days ago but were caught in a heavy snowstorm.

Some residents of Princeton, Kan., scooped up snow from outside their door to make their morning pot of coffee. Despite the newfallen snow, the town's 200 residents had no water because a monthlong drought had dried up Middle Creek, their only source of water.

Double check of dam plans to be sought

Washington (AP) — The Bureau of Reclamation says it will seek engineering double checks of its planning for all future dams as a result of the Teton Dam disaster last June in Idaho.

Commissioner Gilbert G. Stamm said Wednesday that in addition to the planning reviews by independent engineers, the bureau would also:

— Expand the range of instruments on new dams to monitor all facets of a dam's operation.

—Speed up reporting by bureau engineers of any geologic, design, or construction conditions which they think could affect safety.

—Fill the reservoirs of new dams more slowly and monitor the effects of the filling more closely.

Stamm's statement came on the eve of making public a report compiled by an outside panel of experts on the cause of the dam break which killed 11 and resulted in damages of an estimated $1.8 billion.

Stamm said, "We're confident that all the other 290 dams constructed by the bureau as well as those under construction or planned for the future, are or will be completely safe."

The reservoir of the brand-new Teton Dam was being filled at a rate four times normal because the river, fed by melting snows and rain, was much higher than usual.

The Los Angeles Times quoted sources as saying investigators determined that the Reclamation Bureau, through human miscalculation, did not properly design the Idaho dam to cope with unusual geographical factors.

The Times also said high-ranking Interior Department officials are negotiating with representatives of the National Academy of Sciences to begin at once an independent study of "problem dams," including some in need of safety changes.

Rules Committee task politically very difficult

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee began Wednesday to grapple with one of the most difficult tasks facing any legislative body — creating a new committee system that will alter the power and influence of its members.

A major reorganization proposal drafted by a committee headed by Sens. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., and Bob Packwood, R-Ore., is now before the Rules Committee, which must hold hearings, make recommendations, and report back by Jan. 19 or lose jurisdiction to the full Senate.

The proposal addresses three frequent, major complaints of lawmakers — severe scheduling problems due to the many committee assignments now held by each member, an unequal work load among the various committees and irrational jurisdiction that frequently results in many committees or subcommittees dealing with the same subject.

The recommendations include the reduction in Senate committees by more than half, from 31 to 15, a drop in the number of senators' committee and subcommittee assignments from an average of 18 to no more than eight and a reshuffling of jurisdictions for the first time since 1946.

For example, energy policy — now scattered among 14 committees, one select committee, two joint committees and more than 40 subcommittees — would be in a new Energy and Natural Resources Committee, replacing the Interior Committee.

A number of other changes in jurisdiction were proposed, but the most controversial include elimination of the Veterans Affairs Committee and the Special Committee on Aging, with the responsibilities transferred to a new Human Resources Committee.

This is hotly opposed by veterans groups, groups concerned with problems of the aging and a number of lawmakers who believe the special committees guarantee special attention to the needs of veterans and elderly persons.

Stevenson and Packwood testified that allowing a few committees to deal with the particular problems of a specific group of Americans is bound to lead to more and more committees of the same sort.

Packwood said veterans have actually fared worse in terms of legislative benefits with a separate committee than when the duties were handled by a subcommittee of the current Labor and Public Welfare Committee. But he said veterans still want their own committee because of "a psychological desire for a podium."

A bevy of senators were to testify, most favoring reorganization but differing on specific realignment proposals and jurisdictional switches. Then the committee will hear from special interest groups.

Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., told Stevenson and Packwood their plan is not perfect but the Senate would be a better institution if something close to their recommendations is approved.

"It's going to be a rough road ahead," Griffin said. "I want to encourage you and I hope you stick to your guns."

New honor 'fine' with HHH

Washington (AP) — Senate Democrats voted Wednesday to give Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey a new position as deputy president pro tem of the Senate with a pay raise and a chauffeur-driven limousine.

The resolution adopted unanimously by the Senate Democratic Conference is subject to approval by the full Senate. It would apply to all future former presidents and vice presidents who subsequently are elected to the Senate.

Humphrey, vice president to President Lyndon B. Johnson from 1965 to 1969, also was made an ex-officio member of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee and given the privilege of attending White House conferences with the congressional leadership.

Humphrey, unsuccessful in his bid to win election as Senate majority leader, told reporters he liked the new honor "just fine."

He said it will give him the opportunity he sought in seeking the majority leadership to be a member of the leadership team in "developing, molding, and hopefully passing constructive legislation."

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., elected majority leader Tuesday after Humphrey withdrew from the race, had appointed a special committee of Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to recommend a special role for Humphrey.

The panel proposed the new deputy president pro tem position with a $52,000 salary, equal to that paid the majority and minority leaders, and a limousine and chauffeur, as is provided the two leaders. The standard congressional salary is $44,600.

Byrd said the recommendation appealed to all and was adopted unanimously.

Ford likes Texan for GOP chairman

Washington (AP) — President Ford decided Wednesday that he wants Texas lawyer James A. Baker III to be the new chairman of the Republican Party, a White House source said.

The source said Ford made his preference known in a telephone conversation with outgoing chairman Mary Louise Smith. Ford talked with Mrs. Smith after a luncheon with other senior party leaders at the White House failed to come up with a consensus candidate.

Ford's decision to back a candidate for party chairman came after he hosted a luncheon for Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and former Treasury Secretary John Connally.

All not lost for Johnson

Ellendale, Minn. (AP) — Roger Johnson, who wept on opening day last fall when told he was no longer welcome at Ellendale High School, may yet get a chance to return. A search is under way for a paid job the retarded man can manage.

The reason given by new school administrators for barring the 40-year-old Johnson from the school last September was fear of legal problems. But their action caused a public furor.

And on Wednesday the possibility was raised that Johnson may be employed by the school district, maybe as a janitor.

Tom Macy, a counselor with the Minnesota Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, said it would depend on what Johnson was able to do. He said tests would be given to try to answer that question.

Johnson for nine years spent several hours daily at the school, running errands, sweeping up and helping manage Ellendale High's athletic teams. He received no pay.

Then, last fall, Principal Larry Jablinski, 28, ordered Johnson out of the school cafeteria, saying he had no business there. Johnson's parents, who had paid for a meal ticket for their son, discussed the action with Jablinski and were told the problem was one of legal liability.

Supt. Gerhart Dammel, also new in Ellendale last fall, backed the principal and eventually lined up support from the school board in the community of 560 residents.

Reports of the action, and the school administrators' comments, generated considerable reaction, much of it adverse.

Fumes at pump 'hazard'

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The emission of toxic gasoline fumes at filling stations represents "a significant health hazard which the Environmental Protection Agency has failed to address," the Environmental Defense Fund charged Wednesday.

The fund called for strengthened regulations to "sharply reduce gasoline vapor losses at the fuel pump" in order to protect both service station attendants and members of the general public from potentially dangerous exposure to a component of gasoline called benzene.

The National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, according to EDF lawyer Robert Rauch, has recently identified benzene as a human cancer-causing agent — chronic exposure has been linked to blood abnormalities, including various forms of leukemia. More than 250 cases of leukemia have been reported among workers who have been chronically exposed to benzene, he said.

"Gasoline evaporation is a major source of benzene emissions," with an estimated 53 million pounds of benzene lost to the environment each year, Rauch noted in testimony prepared for a hearing being held here Wednesday on proposed EPA regulations.

While admitting that "data is relatively scarce," Rauch cited studies which suggest that benzene emission levels around gas pumps may already exceed recommended exposure levels and are likely to increase in the future because of changes in gasoline content.

Motorcycle emission rules issued

(c) Washington Star

Washington — For the first time, the federal government Wednesday issued rules to control exhaust emissions from motorcycles, which individually are far greater air polluters than current models of automobiles.

Although the nation's motorcycles contribute only about 1% to the total pollution from vehicles, an average one produces about six times as much hydrocarbons and twice the carbon monoxide per mile as an automobile.

The Environmental Protection Agency rules will be applied in two steps, the first effective in 1978 which will reduce hydrocarbon emissions by 34% and carbon monoxide by 36%.

For motorcycles produced in 1980 and later, the reductions will reach 54% for hydrocarbons and 49% for carbon monoxide.

The EPA said the technology is available today to meet the first stage standards — largely through improved carburetors — but the more stringent 1980 standards will require "significant improvements" in two-stroke engines or their replacement by the more popular four-stroke engines.

Bergland to Omaha; woe on the agenda

When the new administration's incoming secretary of agriculture, Robert Bergland, meets in Omaha Friday with agriculture representatives from various states, he will hear a tale of woe. The meeting will not be open to the public but the public will still know pretty well what goes on.

From as many as 11 midwestern states, Bergland will hear about continuing depressed cattle prices and corn and wheat selling on the market for less than the cost of production. Another tale of woe might be found in the area of solutions.

That tale of woe would be that solutions are mighty hard to come by. Not even leading agriculture figures can say with any unanimity what they think needs to be done to restore a proper measure of profitability to farming.

Production controls will undoubtedly come under discussion at the Omaha gathering but that is all. Not many people are willing to openly and earnestly urge the use of controls, since working farmers and ranchers don't seem to want them.

And the new administration would not be likely, anyway, to embark upon that radical a measure the first year in office.

More than likely, the new administration will not make a great many changes in things. Current crop loan prices will likely be improved some by the government but not substantially. An effort will be made to increase exports and something might be done to increase U.S. food distribution programs in underdeveloped nations.

But this first year of the Carter administration is likely to be one in which we mainly hope for the best. It is believed by many that the worst of the cattle crisis is over and that beef prices for producers will show a good improvement in 1977.

If the corn and wheat crop is good, however, it could be another long summer and fall in 1977 for producers. It is certainly a peculiarity, but it is a fact, that a good harvest means trouble for the farmer.

The only thing for sure that Bergland is likely to discover in Omaha and in the months ahead is that he has one of the toughest and most thankless jobs in the new administration. The nation's food abundance is a blessing it simply has not yet learned to manage.

LES board 'balance'

Mayor Boosalis' nomination of Joyce Durand to serve on the Lincoln Electric System (LES) board was imaginative, appropriate and is deserving of swift City Council confirmation.

The appointment further shows that the mayor has her ear to the ground so far as citizen attitudes toward utility rates are concerned.

Mrs. Durand peripherally addressed the issues of electric rates and electric utility oversight in her recent campaign for a seat on the Nebraska Public Service Commission. Her concern over rising electric rates was also made evident by membership in the Lincoln Utilities Coalition.

In suggesting the reappointments of LES board members Tom Allman and Barbara Lautzenheiser in addition to her new appointment, the mayor described Mrs. Durand as a "strong consumer advocate" who would bring balance to the board.

That may be, but it is a curious emphasis. Who better to appoint than a consumer advocate to a board which runs what is essentially a consumer-owned utility? And if a consumer advocate brings balance to a board, what interests does she balance?

In our book, if one Joyce Durand is good for the board, three would be better.

Troubles plague Amtrak

The trains ran on time in fascist Italy. They don't in America. But it shouldn't take a Mussolini to point out that you can't run a railroad on flat wheels.

Flat spots on engine wheels are only one of the problems currently besetting Amtrak passenger trains. Derailments — perhaps caused by inadequate tracks or track beds — and other faulty equipment on rolling stock have also contributed to the plague of problems visited upon the east-west route between Chicago and California recently.

Railroad passengers have, it seems, spent as much time on buses or airplanes after equipment breakdowns than they have in Amtrak coaches. That's an exaggeration, of course, but the rail passengers whose trips were interrupted wouldn't think so.

The problems are not unique to the Amtrak route in this area alone.

Congress and the Carter administration with its expert new transportation secretary are going to have to take a new look at the public investment in Amtrak before the system disintegrates into a pile of rubble.

Patchwork prairie country

By La Verna Hassler

This morning it was back into the kitchen again for a baking session, the first since the cookies and candy were made long before the holidays.

I made what are called nut coils, a twisted sweet roll with finely chopped nuts. Since my mixer has the heavy-duty motor with the beaters for bread dough, I decided it was an opportune time for trying the beaters.

I mixed the batter all yeasty and sweet, turned the speed up until the motor had an encouraging hum and waited. Suddenly the dough began to creep up on the beaters.

Now, this will never do, I decided, and added the final cup of flour.

Again the motor obliged. This time before I knew what was happening, the batter, now somewhat stiffer, climbed the beaters and proceeded to roll up over the mixer itself.

"Just what kind of dough did they test this mixer with?" I muttered to myself as I released the beaters and began to scrape the dough back into the bowl.

Twenty minutes later I was still muttering to myself while attempting to complete the task of getting the dough cleaned from the cracks and crevices.

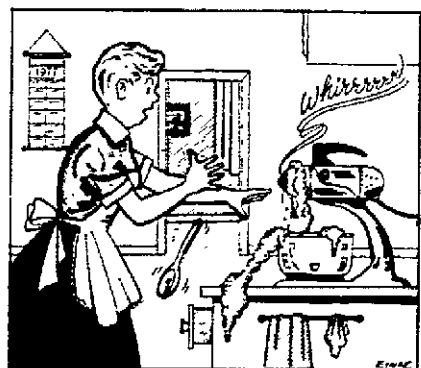

Then I used the one dependable source of power I have used all of my life, my strong right arm, to beat the batter smooth.

There is just no way of winning when one becomes too lazy and tries the easy way out, I decided.

The one thing that came from this kitchen catastrophe were the rolls themselves. They were delicious.

There have been winters when we hoped for the snow to stop and the winds to recede back to the northland. This year in our drought-laden land, we are hoping for snow the quiet, full-blown kind of flakes that sift slowly to the ground and remain where they fall. The soil is so dry and the wheat remains in dire need of moisture. If we must go into the spring with little or no moisture, the outlook will be bleak for the farmers.

One day this past week, the wind blew angrily from the north. It lifted the dry soil from our wheat field reminiscent of the dry thirties. Without snow we will have a spring that will put deeper creases in The Farmer's brow, for spring does not always bring rain.

Picturesque Portraits I would like to frame for the keeping:

A farmhouse nestled under a cluster of trees.

A little pair of mittens left at my house by a small boy who turns every minute into joy.

The new seed catalog on the table opened to the colored page of roses.

The small orange disk of a sun softened by the cold wintry haze on the western horizon.

A grandmother flicking her knitting needles, purring as she talks of her new grandchild.

Moonbeams casting their shadows on the pond where the skaters dip and glide.

A blue enameled winter day with frost around the edges.

The warm hearty welcome of a fireside spent in the company of friends.

Hedges gemmed with frost hiding the quail and pheasant in the briar below.

The new calendar on the wall whose days remind me that they must be filled with something to do, something to love and something to hope for.

WASHINGTON — If he is to "wipe the slate clean" of a decade's nightmare, the President should pardon them all: The draft-evading and deserting lawbreakers of Vietnam, and the power-abusing lawbreakers of Watergate.

Strong arguments can be made against blanket amnesty or pardon for all those who committed political crimes in the Vietnam-Watergate era. Here are a few, with some answers:

1. You cannot link the honorable civil disobedience of Vietnam resisters with the dishonorable abuse of power of the Watergaters.

Watergate's worst crimes were directly rooted in Vietnam. The wiretapping was intended to discover leaks of the

0198 HERBLOCK

BOSTON — Maybe it was the year-end picture roundup that finally did it. Maybe it was the double exposure to the same vivid photographs.

Or perhaps it was the memory of three amateur photographers carefully standing in the cold last fall, calculating their "f" stops and light meters, trying to find the best angle, pointing their cameras at a drunk in a doorway.

Or maybe it was simply my nine-year-old cousin playing Candid Camera at the family gathering.

But whatever the reason, it has finally hit me. We have become a nation of Kodachrome, Nikon, Instamatic addicts. But we haven't yet developed a clear idea of the ethics of picture-taking. We haven't yet determined the parameters of privacy in a world of flash cubes and telescopic lenses.

We "take" pictures. As psychologist Stanley Milgram puts it, "A photographer takes a picture, he does not create it or borrow it." But who has given us the right to "take" those pictures and under what circumstances?

Since the camera first became portable, we have easily and repeatedly aimed it at public people. It has always been open shooting season on them. With new technology, however, those intrusions have intensified. This year, someone with a camera committed the gross indecency of shooting an unaware Greta Garbo in the nude and People magazine printed it.

This year, again, Ron Gallela "took" the image of Jacqueline Onassis and sold it as if it belonged to him. This year, we have pictures of a crumpled Wayne Hays, an indiscreet Nelson Rockefeller, and two presidential candidates in every imaginable pose from the absurd to the embarrassing.

We have accepted the idea that public people are always free targets for the camera — without even a statute of limitations for Jackie or Garbo. We have also accepted the idea that a private person becomes public by being involved in a public event. The earthquake victims of Guatemala, the lynched leftists of Thailand, the terror-stricken of Ireland — their emotions and their bodies become frozen images. The right of the public to know, to see

William Safire

Cambodian bombing secrets. The plumbers' break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office was to discredit the man who published the Pentagon Papers of the Vietnam War. The "cover-up" was not just to conceal one burglary, but a range of illegal suppressions of Vietnam dissent. Watergate was Vietnam's bitter fruit.

Just as many of the draft resisters saw themselves obeying a higher moral law in breaking the draft laws, many of the Watergaters believed they were obeying a higher law of protecting national security in breaking the burglary statutes. The reverse side of Daniel Ellsberg was Gordon Liddy.

2. The draft resisters were morally right and the Watergaters were morally wrong.

That's the way most people see it now. But it was not the way many people saw it at the time. A war was raging, 300 Americans per week were dying, and the Watergaters knew of unchallenged precedents in other administrations of national-security breaches of the Constitution. They were wrong — "everybody did it" was no excuse — but a pardoner must consider motives, and some, like plumber Egil Krogh, were not ignominiously motivated.

3. Unlike the draft resisters and deserters, the Watergaters were driven by ambition and lust for power, and used national security as their excuse.

In some cases, that was true. And in some cases, deserters ran away not from a desire to stop the killing, but from a desire to stop from getting killed. Just as there were resisters motivated by plain cowardice, there were White House aides motivated by plain power-craziness. A general pardon would let these lawless go free, along with the higher-law believers.

4. The pardon of the Watergaters would encourage other abuses of government power in the future.

And the pardon of deserters would undermine military discipline in some future war; the argument works both ways and has validity. The answer is that pardon implies some guilt — the government gives pardon, and does not ask for it — and the years of disgrace have been punishment. Most major Watergaters have been broken financially, some only recouping through abject penance in print; the entire experience is surely a deterrent to future power-abusers.

5. It would be unfair to let unjailed Mitchell and Haldeman off when other Watergaters have served time.

True — and in the same way, it is unfair to let resisters who held out go free when thousands of others worked off or served time for their law-breaking. Unfairness? What of soldiers killed or maimed fighting in the place of those who ran away? Life — and in this case, death — is unfair. I am not among those who, in the name of fairness, would delight in seeing the ruined John Mitchell (who signed the illegal order to tap my telephone) put in the slammer, within grabbing range of convicts whose indictments he approved. And equity loses its luster when applied to the scandalously savage sentence imposed upon Gordon Liddy: in effect, the key has been thrown away until he gives up his constitutional right to be silent. Fair?

6. If all those, including Democrats, convicted by the special prosecutor have their records wiped clean by inclusion in the Vietnam pardon — justice would be denied, perverted, and made a mockery of.

Justice is not the issue here: pardon, by its nature, is the suspension of justice and the interposition of mercy. The idea of amnesty is to set aside the requirements of justice in the overriding national interest. Rightly or wrongly, Judge Sirica put the revelation of truth above justice, and a pardon now would remove restraints from telling the whole truth.

The President would require much courage to let himself be the lightning rod for what would surely be one last great flash of resentment. But he has it in his power to do what he set out to do: to put the long national nightmare of Vietnam and Watergate behind us. He should pardon them all.

Whatever happened to privacy?

and to be affected is considered more important than the right of the individual to mourn, or even die, in privacy.

What happens now, however, when cameras proliferate until they are as common as television sets? What happens when the image being "taken" is that of a butcher, baker and a derelict, rather than a public figure? Do we all lose our right to privacy simply by stepping into view?

Should we be allowed to point cameras at each other? To regard each other as objects of art? Does the photographer or the photographed own the image?

Several years ago, Time magazine photographer Steve Northrup, who had covered Vietnam, and Watergate, took a group of students around Cambridge shooting pictures. He quietly insisted that they ask every pizza-maker, truck driver, and beautician for permission. His attitude toward private citizens was one of careful respect for the power of "exposure." In contrast to this, the average camera bug — like the average tourist — too often goes about snapping "quaint" people, along with "quaint" scenes: See the natives smile, see the natives carrying baskets of fruit, see the native children begging, see the drunk in the doorway.

As Milgram wrote, "I find it hard to understand wherein the photographer has derived the right to keep for his own purposes the image of the peasant's face."

Where do we get the right to bring other people home in a canister? Where did we lose the right to control our image?

In a study that Milgram conducted last year, a full 65 percent of the people to whom his students talked in midtown Manhattan refused to have their pictures taken, refused to be photographed. I don't think they were camera shy, in the sense of being vain. Rather, they were reluctant to have their pictures "taken."

The Navahos long believed that the photographer took a piece of them away in his film. Like them, we are coming to understand the power of these frozen images. Photographs can help us to hold on to the truth of our past, to make our history and identity more real. Or, they can rip something away from us as precious as the privacy which once clothed Greta Garbo.

Extra effort by LES

Facts of the case

Lincoln, Neb.

In reference to Mrs. Leonard Dodson's "Two-way option" letter in the Dec. 29 Star, we are anxious to let Star's readers know that Lincoln Electric System's line crews were handling emergency overhead line work between 7:15 p.m. and 8:40 p.m. (noted in her letter as "non-emergency repair work") on Friday, Dec. 10.

Here are the facts: A steel guy wire had broken on a 70-foot power pole near South 70th and Shamrock Road. LES had to make emergency repairs and had to take a number of customers out of service for less than two hours. Had not this urgent work been done that night, there was a very real possibility that the weight of transformers, crossarms and several 34,500-volt and 12,500-volt lines would have caused that pole to break (especially in five-below cold and 15 mph wind). A broken pole, tangled lines and power transformers would have caused a serious and widespread power outage in southeast Lincoln for about 5,000 customers!

LES personnel spotted the broken guy wire and the pole's condition late in the afternoon on Dec. 10. A decision was made (and many customers in that area and news media were notified) that emergency repairs would be made during an approximate two-hour outage. Temporary repairs were made. We know the emergency work saved thousands of customers a lengthy outage in addition to saving LES (and customers) thousands of dollars in what could have been a major expense (power lines, transformers, additional labor, time, etc.).

The nighttime work was done by LES personnel on a cold, windy night while many colleagues attended the employees' annual Christmas dinner. We believe this extra effort by dedicated LES personnel on a cold Friday night was a benefit (in service and savings) to our customers — owners and not a way "to increase costs of service to customers," as Mrs. Dodson's letter stated.

Military pensions

David City, Neb.

A recent front-page news item read thus: Military pension plan "lavish" . . . The present military retirement pension system is nothing but a license to raid the Treasury, according to Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis.

This publication really got to my core. I myself and thousands of citizens who are eternally grateful to all branches of servicemen are very disappointed in such a proposal to rewrite the military retirement plan.

Do we ever think of all those individuals who served their country faithfully, giving of their best young years to strict discipline, training and obedience, even torture, bloodshed and death? And this, while some waste their youth hot-rodding around, abusing themselves and others with drugs, dope and mistreating law authorities. And finally there are the deserters being granted amnesty and hand-order to achieve the idea of a pension paid out until the age of 55?

Is Mr. Aspin thinking constructively or destructively? If he wishes to save funds, he should start stabilizing those dreadful wages and raises paid out in federal, state and county offices. And finally, is there justice in paying such a pension to the head of our past administration?

Our Navy, Army and Air Force are tops! And they are well deserving of a good pension plan.

Why should a has-been like Barry Goldwater bad-mouth Daniel Schorr for revealing what he did about the CIA? The Republicans have seized upon this as an example of treason. Nonsense. Their own inactivity under the Eisenhower administration in allowing the CIA to become more powerful than it should be was worse.

The CIA doesn't run the American people as much as some people in it would like to think. Most of us will take our chances with the foreign enemy agents, but we sure want to know when our own are gathering power under the cloak of national security.

The CIA along with the FBI made a perfect team for wiretapping and stomping on civil rights. Why can't they, if they are so good, clean the syndicate out of the country? Because they are scared and it's too messy, that's why.

Daniel Schorr performed a greater service in releasing this information to the Village Voice than Mr. Goldwater has in all of his years as congressman from Arizona.

Hearing to check on Beatrice Home case

Omaha (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Albert G. Schatz has scheduled a Feb. 15 hearing on whether to reopen the Beatrice State Home case on grounds the state of Nebraska has failed to implement an agreement ironed out more than a year ago.

Schatz has ordered all parties in the suit to submit no later than Feb. 9 reports in writing concerning the progress made in carrying out provisions of the agreement in the four-year-old case.

In addition, Schatz Tuesday denied a Nebraska request that the U.S. Justice Department be thrown out of the case as a plaintiff-intervenor. The state had contended the Justice Department had no authority to enter the case and its doing so was another example of encroachment of state's rights by the federal government.

Bruce G. Mason, Omaha, attorney for the plaintiffs, had argued in favor of retaining the Justice Department in the case.

Mason and the Justice Department have alleged the state has blatantly failed to implement the agreement which basically called for recognition of the constitutional rights of mentally retarded citizens and recognition by the state that a "substantial number" of mentally retarded citizens at Beatrice be placed in existing community mental retardation centers.

The agreement called for a panel to implement the plan, but the Nebraska Legislature failed to appropriate the necessary $40,000 to finance the panel's operations.

State Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas said Wednesday officials at the Beatrice home have developed an implementation plan which the state believes is "satisfactory."

"We hope the plaintiffs and plaintiff intervenors think it is satisfactory," Douglas said, "but if they don't then it will be up to the court to decide."

Mason, however, said the state has been "talking about an institutionalization plan for the past four years, but I've never seen it."

"Obviously, if the state had such a plan, we wouldn't have had to file the lawsuit," Mason added.

Mason originally represented the parents of five children at the home who contended their constitutional rights were being violated. The case was expanded to a class action to where it now involves 700 to 800 residents at the home — or all but about 100 of those in its population — in addition to those in community-based mental retardation centers.

Separate accidents fatal to 2

United Press International

A Central City youth died Wednesday of injuries suffered in a car train accident Monday and a Silver Creek man died Tuesday night following an accident east of Palmyra, authorities said Wednesday.

Timothy A. Hageman, 18, died in a Central City hospital, according to Central City police. Hageman was injured Monday when the car he was driving was struck by a Union Pacific freight train in Central City. Authorities said Hageman was alone in the car at the time of the accident.

Dwayne Spike, 22, Silver Creek, died in a Lincoln hospital about nine hours after his car collided head-on with a semi-trailer half a mile east of Palmyra on Nebraska 2.

The State Patrol said the accident occurred when Spike attempted to pass a semi-trailer and collided with another truck driven by Darold Meyer, 58, Paxton, who was treated for minor injuries at a Syracuse hospital.

Man enters plea of guilty in wife's death

Kearney (AP) — Buffalo County District Court Judge DeWayne Wolfe Wednesday accepted a plea of guilty of first degree murder by Lee Beans, 42, charged in the shooting death of his estranged wife.

The judge accepted the plea after concluding an evidentiary hearing that started Monday.

Wolfe ruled after hearing testimony of relatives and friends that Beans entered the plea "voluntarily, knowingly and intelligently."

No date was set for sentencing.

Sales tax plan fades

Ralston (AP) — A proposed city sales tax died in Ralston Tuesday night for the lack of a second to the motion before the City Council. Councilman Harold Retzlaff proposed a one per cent sales tax, but no one seconded it, so the motion died. However, councilmen said the proposal may come up again because of the status of the city's general fund.

Speed limit lowered

Omaha (AP) — The City Council has changed the maximum speed on city streets, except for freeways, to 45 miles per hour, from a maximum of 55. If the speed is lower, officials said, it would be posted. The change was suggested by traffic engineer Richard Klatt and won the endorsement of the council.

State auditors report procedural problems

By Dick Holman
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska auditors found some agency housekeeping problems in reviewing operations of the Commission on the Status of Women. There was no legal authority to pay commissioners' travel expenses, the body violated the public meetings law, leave records weren't kept for each commission employee, and furniture and equipment weren't tagged as state property.

The audit report said more than $3,000 was paid during the year ending last June 30 for commission members' approved travel and meeting expenses. But "we could find no authority (in law)" to allow any payments. Commission officials agreed to stop further reimbursements until the question is settled.

Regarding public meetings law requirements, the report said commission formal actions weren't approved on a roll call vote. Also, advance notice of meetings was published as required, but the method used wasn't recorded in commission minutes — another violation of the law. Officers agreed to correct those problems.

The commission had adopted state personnel system rules which require maintaining formal records of sick leaves and vacations. Auditors found that information was "informally noted on a calendar."

Lacking such records makes it impossible to compute leave and vacation time earned and used, for accurate payments involving retirements and terminations, and for employee transfers to another state agency, the report said.

The commission agreed with recommendations to establish the records, and to tag all state property; only three of 26 items were marked.

Created in 1965 and made statutory in 1971, the commission may have a maximum of 30 members appointed by the governor. Initial state funding of $9,000 in 1973 grew to $35,427 in fiscal 1975-76, when federal grants of $24,345 brought the total budget to $59,772.

48 animals picked up in 1977 by 6 officers

Since six new animal control officers started on the job Jan. 1, 48 animals have already been picked up, according to Mayor Helen Boosalis.

Of the total, 43 were unlicensed dogs that were taken to the pound being operated by the Humane Society under a contract with the city.

Four of the five licensed dogs that were picked up were delivered to their owners home. Similar procedures will be followed with all licensed animals that are picked up.

If attempts to deliver the animal are unsuccessful the dog is delivered to the pound, which happened in the case of one of the 48 dogs picked up.

Establishment of the new pickup program has resulted in a flood of license applications "by the hundred," Mrs. Boosalis said.

The new program was established after a flurry of criticism that the Humane Society, which had been handling pickup chores, was not doing the job properly.

Omaha mayor to revive Riverfront planning group

Omaha (AP) — Mayor Robert Cunningham said Wednesday he is reconvening the Riverfront Development Committee and its task forces, which have been dormant since the completion of planning in mid-1975.

He said he will ask the committee and task forces, which once had about 600 members, to review progress and make recommendations to rapidly achieve plans.

Michael Yanney, banker who was chairman of the Riverfront Executive Committee, will be asked to complete a progress report by March 31.

Cunningham said the Riverfront program "developed an agenda for action—a list of projects which should be accomplished. Enough time has passed that the agenda should be updated."

He said he expects the committee review to be valuable to the Mayor's Committee for Economic Development, which Cunningham established last month.

The committee comprised of volunteer members was formed in 1970 under then Mayor Eugene Leahy. Various citizens task forces were formed in 1972. Mayor Edward Zorinsky deactivated the committee and task forces when plans were completed.

An organization called MidAmerica Resources Thrust was formed last year to carry out Riverfront plans.

Pat Pendergrass, executive director of the privately funded Riverfront Communities Development Foundation, said reconvening of the committee and task forces would not be a duplication of MART.

He said the Riverfront Foundation represents the business "power structure," while the Riverfront Development Committee "is more of a citizen organization."

The committee members, he said "push government and push MART. They challenge them. The Riverfront Committee never had any authority."

Pendergrass said 98 Riverfront-related projects in the region either are completed or in progress at a cost of $317 million.

The total Riverfront plan has 149 projects totaling $764 million.

Pork producers said likely to continue losing money

The nation's pork producers, swamped by a $20 a hundred-weight drop in live hog prices between July and October 1976, likely will continue to lose money through 1977, according to Dr. Larry Bitney, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension agricultural economist.

Bitney said live hog prices are expected to average between $35 and $37 a hundred-weight this year following the record high prices of $48 in 1975 and $43 in 1976, although prices during the last half of the year could improve if winter and spring pig crops and supplies of competing red meats decline.

He said a figure in the mid to upper-$30s will mean that most producers won't recover their total production costs, which are expected to average $40 a hundred-weight in 1977, providing that corn prices average $2.50 a bushel and 44% soybean meal costs $200 a ton.

However, Bitney said, most established producers will be able to recover their out-of-pocket costs, which are expected to be about $30 a hundred-weight, a still have some money remaining to meet total costs such as fixed building and equipment, labor, management and overhead costs.

Hog prices are expected to be lowest — in the low- to mid-$30s — during the spring,

LT&T has proposal for 84th, O corner

Mayor Helen Boosalis's last reservation on the selection of the 84th and O St. site for a vocational college campus may soon be removed.

A proposal from the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. to build on the northeast corner of the intersection may end the possibility of commercial development there, she said Wednesday.

Mrs. Boosalis had voiced fears earlier that the new Southeast Community College campus might spur commercial development at the 10-acre corner site, which the landowner who sold property to the college had withheld from the transaction.

But the proposed telephone services building at that location could be made compatible with the surrounding neighborhood, she said Wednesday at her biweekly press conference.

Commercial development had been opposed at the location because of the city's attempts to stem further urbanization eastward in favor of growth in other directions.

The building would be used to house equipment, supplies, and vehicles owned by LT&T. Mrs. Boosalis said the facility would have none of the drawbacks of a commercial retail development.

For example, she said, it will attract little traffic. Few employees will work there, she said.

The LT&T proposal will be heard Friday by the Board of Zoning Appeals, because city zoning laws does not include public utility buildings as a permitted use under the current AA rural and public use zoning on the land.

LT&T is arguing that an exception should be made to allow construction of such a building in the AA zoning district.

Photo shop closed, robber opts for neighboring bank

Omaha, (AP) — Police were looking for an armed robber who took an undetermined amount of money from a Nebraska Federal Savings Loan Association office in Omaha Wednesday.

Employees told police the gunman walked into the office at 7160 Ames Ave. just after opening and forced a teller to hand him a money drawer. Police said the man was unsuccessful in an attempt to force a woman in the office to drive him away in her car, but he did leave with the woman's keys. Employees said the man fled west on foot. He was described as a white male in his 20s, wearing a green parka and a stocking cap. The description matched that of a man who robbed two Fox Photo drive-in stores in Southwest Omaha last week. A Fotomat office next to the establishment robbed today was closed at the time of the holdup.

Exon appoints three to study resource use

Gov. J. James Exon appointed three men Wednesday to serve with him on the High Plains Study Council.

They are State Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora; Dayle Williamson of Lincoln, executive secretary of the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission, and Frank Dragoun of Holdrege, president of the Groundwater Management Districts Association.

The High Plains Study Council is being established as a result of a new federal law President Ford signed last Oct. 22. It authorizes the U.S. secretary of commerce to cooperate with appropriate governmental units and the private sector in studying depletion of natural resources in the high plains states. Those are Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

The study, Exon said, will concentrate on economic effects of depleting groundwater irrigation sources and other natural resources. A companion report will make recommendations to Congress.

The High Plains Study Council, organized by spearheading efforts of Oklahoma Gov. David Boren, will consist of each governor of the six states and three gubernatorial appointees each.

Pixler awaits arraignment out of jail

Fort Dodge, Iowa (AP) — Charles J. Pixler of Omaha, charged with conspiring to commit murder and a felony, was released on $20,000 bail Tuesday.

Pixler will be arraigned Monday in Webster County District Court.

The charges stem from a series of incidents involving the Dwayne VandeStouwe family of Fort Dodge, whose daughter lived in Omaha with a group of Pixler followers.

Pixler was arrested Dec. 8 during the trial of Donna Rae Miller. She was convicted of aggravated robbery for terrorizing Mrs. VandeStouwe and her 15-year-old son on Oct. 6. Two others have also been arrested.

During the Donna Miller trial, witnesses said Pixler was upset when Collette VandeStouwe left his group of female companions and he sent other members of the group out looking for her.

Pixler's arrest was based on alleged threats against VandeStouwe.

The VandeStouwe's lived in Omaha but recently moved to Fort Dodge, where VandeStouwe's is manager of the Iowa Beef Processor plant.

NPPD plant gets extension on air cleanup

Omaha (AP) — Federal and state environmental agencies said Tuesday the Kramer Power plant at Bellevue may continue to violate air quality regulations a few more months.

The Nebraska Public Power District had asked for an extension of its Dec. 31 deadline to install equipment which sucks up thousands of pounds of particles emitted from the plant's stacks. The district said it needed additional time to complete the work.

Federal and state officials granted the extension on the condition that the equipment be installed by the first of April and that the plant comply with pollution control regulations by June 1.

Funeral homes objecting to ordinance

Omaha (AP) — Two funeral homes objected Tuesday to a proposed funeral procession ordinance.

Representatives of Roeder and John A. Gentleman Mortuaries objected to a part of the ordinance that would require an escort vehicle to remain in an intersection until the entire procession had passed.

They said it would be costly because more escort vehicles would be needed than at present.

Robert Blankenship, director of the mayor's traffic safety committee, urged the council to retain that provision.

The proposal has been considered by the traffic committee for eight months, since an Omaha policeman was killed while escorting the funeral of Boys Town Director Msgr. Nicholas Wegner.

The council delayed action for two weeks.

Hidden cars are tax dodge

Omaha (UPI) — A spot-check by the Douglas County assessor's office has shown some people will go to considerable means to avoid personal property tax assessments.

Mrs. Lois Callahan, the head of the Personal Property Assessment Dept., said Tuesday one Omaha car dealer hid about 40 cars in a western Douglas County sand pit on New Year's Day — the day when personal property is assessed for tax purposes.

Mrs. Callahan said she spotted the vehicles from an airplane and when she checked again Monday, the cars were gone.

Another car dealer had a full lot Friday, Mrs. Callahan said, but on Saturday the lot contained only nine cars.

She said the airplane, piloted by a friend of County Assessor Frank Bemis, made it easy to spot items not normally visible from the ground, such as construction equipment stored behind tall wooden fences.

Mrs. Callahan said she planned to watch farm reports specifically concerning large irrigation equipment which may have been purchased last year because of the drought.

She said one farmer saw her Monday in the country and asked "if we thought he was cheating."

"I said I couldn't tell until I checked his (personal property) schedule," Mrs. Callahan said. "He was pretty mad."

A cattle feeder and a former public official drove in front of the car Mrs. Callahan was riding in and stopped.

She said he came running back to her car and asked why she was in the country on Monday when she had been there by airplane on Saturday.

The feeder said the personal property tax was unfair and didn't believe farmers had to report all of their cattle.

One feedlot owner provided Mrs. Callahan full information on those with whom he did business.

"It would be nice if they all cooperated like he did," Mrs. Callahan said. "He had nothing to hide."

Committee to step up Iowa Beef settlement

Chicago (UPI) — A union representing more than a half million workers in meat processing and related industries named a committee to enhance the union's bargaining efforts with the Iowa Beef Products Co. (IBP).

The present contract between IBP and the Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butcher Workmen, AFL-CIO, covering some 2,000 workers at the company's plant in Dakota City, Neb., expires Jan. 22.

Iowa Beef's wage levels and fringe benefits are substantially below the prevailing rate in the industry, union officials contend. The firm is the country's largest producer of beef pre-cut and packaged for distribution through retail outlets.

The seven members of the Amalgamated committee have been appointed by Harry Poole, union president.

"Parity is the issue at Iowa Beef," the union said in a statement. "1977 is the year when the differential must come to an end."

Iowa Beef has plants in seven states including Nebraska.

Reasoning text use criticized

Omaha (AP) — Court action is one option that may be considered by a group of parents opposing the use of the textbook, "Harry Stottlemeier's Discovery," in a critical reasoning course.

At a meeting of about 100 persons at Millard High School Tuesday, school board member Charles Haskins said he would raise the issue at the board's Jan. 17 meeting.

He said the board may or may not change current plans to use the textbook next semester.

A course designed to teach critical reasoning to fifth and sixth graders is planned as a pilot project at two Millard grade schools and at some schools in Omaha District 66 and Ralston.

Some speakers at Tuesday's meeting opposed the course, while others favored it.

Asst. Supt. Tom Nenneman said parents of 36 of the 212 eligible pupils have asked that their children be excluded.

Don Williams said the Millard chapter of the National Congress of Educational Excellence thinks the course may violate state teaching laws and a U.S. Supreme Court decision.

Williams cited two state statutes that he said require positive teaching about democracy and capitalism and that require teaching respect for the parents and home.

He said the court case says a course should be removed from a school, not the child from the course, if a conflict exists.

Opponents of the use of the book said it may cause children to question their parents' values, uses unnecessarily volatile examples and might even affect children not in the course because of poor influence.

Supporters said the course deals with important issues that are meaningful to fifth and sixth graders and that parents should be able to retain the option of having their children participate.

Traveling 'store' educates 5 senses

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

Jimmy carefully picks up the silver canister with the black number "8" on it, removes the lid and takes a whiff.

It's a sweet smell, pleasant to the enthusiastic third-grader. Smiling, he replaces the canister and walks to a giant control panel with four rows of lighted buttons.

He pushes button "8" . . . then pauses. In the next row are pictures of oranges and apples, and . . . a candy bar. A chocolate candy bar.

"That's it," his eyes beamed. Chocolate. He presses the button with the candy bar picture, then carefully studies the third row with words on the buttons. C-h-o-c-o-l-a-t-e. He presses the button.

Row four is a puzzler. There are buttons with "feeling" words on it. "Sour," "sweet," etc. Jimmy presses the "sweet." Music starts to play and a pleasant voice invites him to try another smell.

Jimmy and fellow Lincoln Public School students are getting their sensibilities educated through a unique project temporarily headquartered at Park School, 714 F St.

The Five Sense Store, a series of packages that teach esthetics, relies on sensory perceptions to expand student's appreciation of the arts, according to Ed Sweda, project coordinator.

"We can teach 3-year-olds to read with the smell game," Sweda said.

Other games teach lessons in other senses.

The Space Place, a giant trampoline-looking device, allows students to build styrofoam block shapes, sometimes imitating projected images from several carousel slide projectors.

Changing the shape of the blocks changes the images and gives students a sense of depth and texture, Sweda explained. The Space Place is probably the most popular exhibit in the store, which covers 45,000 square feet in the Park School gymnasium.

For the first time in four years of travel, the store is set up in a public school.

"We generally set up in a museum or other large facility," Sweda said, since most schools don't have the necessary space. "We are an exhibit orientated society," he added, pointing to the popularity of museums nationwide which feature everything from insects to spaceships.

Members of the Lincoln Junior League act as guides in the store and introduce student groups to different packages. Each package teaches a concept in esthetics and contains well-tested and carefully designed learning materials along with complete instructions and background information for the teacher, Sweda explained.

The goal — to make students of esthetic qualities and improve their ability to make decisions based on esthetic values.

The Five Sense Store was created by artists . . . not engineers, since, according to Sweda, "there are no right or wrong perceptions in the arts. It isn't the exacting thing like math or engineering. Some of the unique attributes of art come from mistake and accident. That doesn't work in engineering."

A branch of the Smithsonian Institute was the vehicle which brought the creators together. That branch, the Central Midwest Regional Education Labs (CEMREL), is headquartered in St. Louis.

Sweda, formerly a music teacher in the Chicago school system, said he became involved in the store project because it took a realistic approach to solving one of the greatest problems in education today.

"We tend to performance-orient our kids, scaring them away from investigation. If they can't sing a perfect note we hammer the correct one into them, and they don't want to experiment with other notes," he explained.

"I remember unpacking a crate of spearmint to be used in one of our exhibits," Sweda said. "I experienced a sort of 'deja vu.'"

"It sent me back 20 years to my childhood when my mother used to chew half a stick of spearmint gum and leave the other half in her purse. If she'd send me to her purse for change I'd open it up and get a whiff of spearmint," Sweda explained.

Similar sensory perceptions might be made by students touring the Five Sense Store, if all goes according to plan.

A good example of people using their senses can be found in watching Eastern Europeans at a vegetable stand, Sweda said. "They handle, sniff and thump fruit, using all their senses," he added.

Consultants and teachers can gain a wealth of information from the experiences students have in the Five Sense Store, Sweda said. "But this isn't the final word, just another word" in their education.

The store moves every two months. It came to Lincoln from Alabama and will travel to Florida in February. Next year the travels will cease, but the CEMREL group will continue in other directions.

"We'll probably establish an air and space museum to be housed in a 747 jumbo jet aircraft," Sweda said. This display could fly into the larger airports and give students a chance to see "more of an airport operation than just the control tower and passengers standing in line." Displays could include a history of flight, and what makes an airplane fly.

Why does he treat tramp like lady, lady like tramp?

DEAR ABBY A woman wrote to you a few years back asking why a married man would pick up some tramp and treat her like a lady, then turn around and treat his wife (who was really a lady) like a tramp. Please try to locate it because your answer was one of the best things I've ever read and I desperately need it now.

SAME BOAT IN ALLENTOWN DEAR SAME: A sharp-eyed secretary with a mind like a steel trap found it, and here it is.

DEAR ABBY Why will a married man pick up some tramp and treat her like a lady, then turn around and treat his wife (who is a lady) like a tramp? MINNIE

DEAR MINNIE A man picks up a tramp because he wants a female companion who is not better than he is. In her company he doesn't feel inferior. He rewards her by treating her like a lady.

He treats his wife (who is a lady) like a tramp because he feels that by degrading her he will bring her down to his level. This makes him feel guilty, so to get even with his wife for making him feel guilty, he keeps right on punishing her.

DEAR ABBY Will you please check this question with your medical advisers? I can't face my doctor with it and it has me worried.

Is it possible for damage to be done to a child if conception occurred while the parents were on a sandy beach and a grain of sand entered the woman's vagina and was carried into her womb with the sperm?

This didn't take place in a public area. It happened in private, but I have been worried about it ever since. Thank you.

WORRIED IN HAWAII DEAR WORRIED: My medical advisers told me to tell you not to worry. (P.S. If it's a boy, name him "Sandy." If a girl, "Sandra.")

DEAR ABBY I have a beautiful adult daughter who is afraid to smile because she has yellowish teeth. She brushes her teeth regularly and visits her dentist often, but her teeth just naturally have that dingy look.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

This is a big problem for her. She looks so pretty when she smiles, but she is so self-conscious about her teeth she won't let herself smile.

Is there a solution? How about caps like the movie stars wear?

MOTHER DEAR MOTHER: If there is a way to whiten naturally yellowish, well-cared for teeth, I've never heard of it, and neither has any dentist I've consulted. Covering all the front teeth with artificial caps would accomplish the desired effect, but it would necessitate partially destroying healthy teeth, which is not recommended by most dental experts.

DEAR ABBY I applaud that clergyman who was man enough to admit that confessing his infidelity to his wife was a terrible mistake.

My husband of 15 years, whom I loved, respected and trusted implicitly, confessed such an affair to me two years ago, and our marriage will never be the same again.

That boastful confession was deadly, despite his proclaimed love for me. It was the biggest mistake he ever made.

If only one person reading this is considering such a confession to "cleanse his soul," I urge you please, please, don't!

EMPTY IN NEW JERSEY DEAR EMPTY: Your letter is full of wisdom. Thanks for sharing.

Opening lead — queen of spades

This deal comes from a team of four match. At one table, after North opened with a weak two heart bid, South wound up in six clubs doubled.

Bridge

West led the queen of spades and declarer played low from dummy. East followed suit with the deuce, in effect asking partner to stop playing the suit. Had East wanted another spade lead, he would have played a higher spade than the deuce.

But West, oblivious to partner's request that he shift to another suit, continued with a spade.

To declarer, this was manna from heaven. He ruffed a spade, led the ace of clubs, played a low heart to dummy's king, returned the ten of clubs to his jack, drew East's last trump, and so made the rest of the tricks.

West's failure to lead a diamond at trick two, the obvious shift, permitted declarer to score a plus of 1,090 points instead of a minus of 100 points. The deal demonstrates the importance of partnership cooperation in defense. Perhaps West was constitutionally unable to bring himself to lead away from the king of diamonds at trick two, and decided instead to make the "safe" lead of another spade. But, as later events proved, the spade continuation was not really safe. Oddly enough, West's mistake was only the minor part of a double disaster for his team. At the other table his teammates, sitting North-South, allowed their opponents to play six spades doubled, making an overtrick, for a score of 1,880 points. South led the king of clubs. Declarer ruffed in dummy, finessed the queen of spades, and easily took the rest of the tricks. The successful team gained 2,950 points on this one deal! (c) King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Officials to defend juvenile jail use

By Gordon Winters
By Staff Writer

Lincoln and Lancaster County officials have been ordered into Lancaster District Court to show the judges why the officials shouldn't stop using juvenile cells in the jail they share. The order, signed by all five district court judges, sets Feb. 3 as the date for the hearing. It also orders city and county officials to make a written report to the court by Feb. 1. The three-page order makes note of efforts since 1973 by the judges to have something done about the two small juvenile cells in the jail.

One item highlighted in the recounting is on April, 1976, judicial order that positive steps be taken by the end of that year to provide "other suitable accommodations."

Named in the order are Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis and Police Chief George Hansen, and Lancaster County Board Chairman Bruce Hamilton and County Sheriff Merle Karnopp.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Boosalis said Wednesday at her biweekly news conference that she is leaning toward supporting a recommendation from Chief Hansen to move most of the police offices to the former Lincoln airport terminal building.

Offices connected with the uniform division (uniformed police officers) would be moved, leaving administrative offices and offices for command personnel in the County-City Building.

Hansen has said the move would open enough space in the police department to create enlarged juvenile cells and other improvements.

Mrs. Boosalis said Monday, however, that an alternative site still under consideration is the Whittier School building at 2240 Vine St. A Lincoln School Board study committee is to report in February whether classes will be closed after this year, she said.

A third alternative, a public works building at 19th and Q Streets, has been abandoned because it would be too costly to remodel for police use, she said.

Even if the uniform division is moved to the air terminal, the solution still will be only temporary, Mrs. Boosalis said.

Eventually, the mayor indicated, a new jail must be constructed or more extensive remodeling of the jail and police complex undertaken.

Tool loan library use now limited by income

Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis decided Wednesday that the Tool Loan Library which opened this week within the Lincoln Action Program should restrict its business to low- and moderate-income persons.

According to the mayor, the city attorney's office said the program should not be open to the general public because it competes with local rental businesses.

The tool loan program, financed by the city's Urban Development Department, offers home repair tools to persons who've obtained "library cards."

Originally, the program offered tools to anyone, giving priority to low- and moderate-income persons, especially those living in city target areas.

Now, any low-income or moderate-income persons living in the target areas may borrow tools.

Guidelines dictate that a low-income family takes in about $8,650 or less annually, and that a moderate income in about $12,900.

No modifications came up on the tool library's sister program, the Home Improvement Maintenance Classes, to be offered by the Southeast Community College beginning Monday.

The classes give the same priority to low- and moderate-income persons, but if the classes aren't filled by starting time, anyone will be allowed in.

The classes are free.

The city's target areas include Northeast Lincoln, University Place, Clinton, Malone, Near South, South Salt Creek and West Lincoln.

1977 Nebraska highway map and tourist facts available

Free copies of the 1977 Nebraska highway map are available at the Nebraska Department of Roads, its seven district offices and the Department of Economic Development in Lincoln. The maps are also available at rest areas alongside Interstate 80.

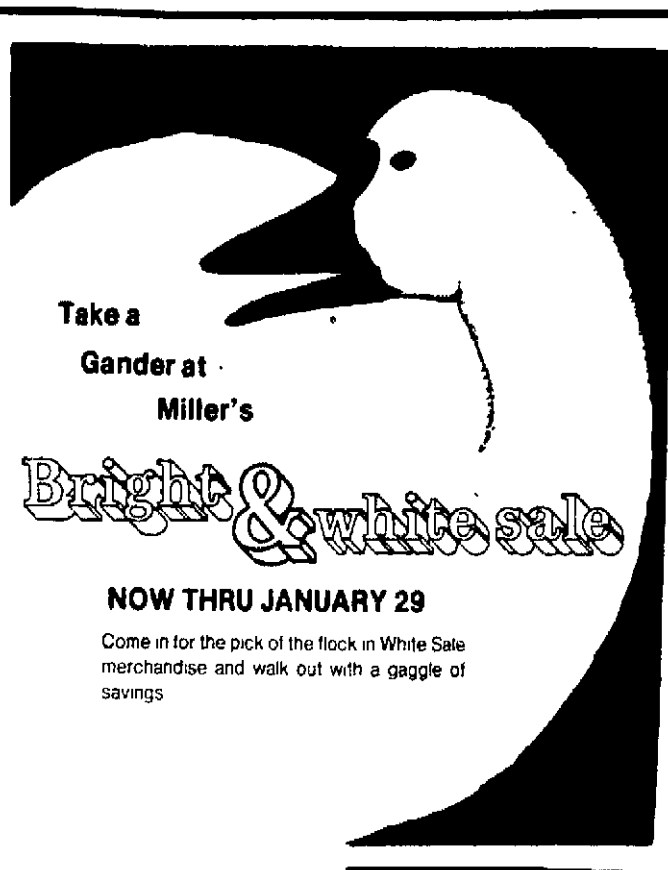

The map cover pictures a covered wagon traveling through western Nebraska. The "travel guide" side of the map carries a strip map of I-80, showing the locations of rest areas, tourist information centers and attractions along or near I-80, and information on 35 historical and natural attractions ranging from Fort Robinson to Brownville.

One and one-half million new maps will be produced.

Fair offers variety, beauty

By Joanne Farris

Did you know that there are over 565,000 model railroaders in the United States? Have you ever heard of the Old Lacers Association? Do you know anyone who belongs to the National Association of Miniature Enthusiasts?

I didn't know much about any of these groups until I spent a recent Sunday afternoon at an American Crafts Fair.

First I was drawn to a model train display where I learned how many modelers there are. The man behind the trains, who is also a member of the Society of Model Engineers, told me about the popularity of model railroading and the association which has standardized it and brought the modelers closer together since 1935 the National Model Railroad Association.

Marv Cole 77 and her daughter Virginia Olsen 58 taught me about the Old Lacers they are two of 1,000 members of this international group members collect old lace and learn how to make it.

Olsen and Cole who have their own doll hospital and museum, belong to the United Federation of Doll Clubs, Inc. which has 10,000 members none under 18. They are also members of the National Association of Miniature Enthusiasts. Among its 5,000 members are many men and young people. In addition to their obvious connection with doll houses and furniture, miniature artists do miniature scenes and make 'everything' in miniature to scale.

Daniel de Mendoza 55 had one of the fair's most unusual exhibits. His wood-carved birds, animals and fish were so realistically shaped and painted that they looked almost alive.

Life Begins At Forty

Lovingly executed work, in a completely different medium, was displayed at the Ceramic League booth. The 230 members are mainly middle-aged and older persons, membership is open only to persons who have achieved a level of high competence in ceramics and the display reflected that skill through the many examples of unusual shapes, uncommon clay colors and textures, and exotic glazes used.

Near the exit was an eggery booth. Exquisitely painted eggs were displayed side by side with magnificently decorated pieces which looked as if they had been carried off from some czar's palace. Mr. Withers, 55, head of a moving and storage company, has a passion for decorated eggs. He performs magic on eggs of all sizes, beading some to look like glorious varicolored flowers, jewelers others, hinging ostrich shells half-open, and dangling semiprecious stones within the confines of exquisite eggs of various sizes.

Throughout the fair I was struck by the devotion of all the participants to their arts and crafts. Artists like these old and young have an exciting creativity of color, form design and execution which was not lost on the constant stream of spectators who crowded the fair.

Hangtown — My great-grandfather unhitched the ox team for the last time at Webberville a gold mining town on Webber Creek. It was September 3, 1850.

We had run out of provisions, he wrote "and had nothing to eat but parched corn for the past two weeks."

He wasted no time moaning but got down in the creek bed and dug for pay dirt. He worked morning until noon and panned out.

"I showed it to the storekeeper who said it was worth two bits," I said. "Give me a pound of crackers for it."

We drove over to Webber Creek the other day.

Webberville once had 10,000 miners and three stores. Today you have to kick away turf to discover brick foundations. There's a farmhouse and that's all.

We drove over the hill three miles and had lunch in Placerville, originally Hangtown —

"The days of old, the days of gold."

"The days of Forty-nine."

In these days, the Mother Lode shows signs of life again. The subdividers have come to the lonely, lovely land. Signpost promises of the good life rise on the gravel tailings.

LEISURE LIVING! (It used to be Hardscrabble.)

GOLDEN ACRES! (The miners called it Poverty Flat.)

It's a beautiful country on the edge of the snow line. Low enough for fruit trees. And in back country, deserted farms, you can pick fruit gone wild that makes a superior jam.

These are the foothills of the Sierra Nevada. Spanish for "snow-covered mountains."

Our great-grandfather remembered it. "On Sundays I occasionally amused myself by climbing a tall pine tree and, with a large field glass, taking a magnificent view of the Sacramento valley and the coast range mountains."

"I could plainly see the smoke and steam from the steamboats on the Sacramento river, 60 miles away, the great spreading oak trees on the Cosumnes river, 30 miles away. Then I turned my glass to the east and such a sight as I saw! 30, 40, 50 or 100 miles away, all the pine trees and the mountains were crossed with a great white sheet of snow."

"This was the grandest sight of my life," he wrote. Sitting on the porch of a farmhouse, looking across the flat Illinois prairies. Remembering the golden country.

The mobile homes (the covered wagons of today) are parked on pine tree hills looking down on the rushing Mokelumne river.

Beside the American where James Marshall discovered gold at Sutter's Mill.

Beside stone foundations of Wells Fargo stage coach stations. (Walk out of your front door and pan a little gold.)

New coordinator sought for CD related position

By Bob Reeves
Star Staff Writer

The names of 4 to 6 applicants for the position of city-county Emergency Services Coordinator will be submitted to Mayor Helen Boosalis this month by a special screening committee.

The new post will replace that of Civil Defense Director. Besides planning and supervising emergency preparedness in Lincoln and Lancaster County, the new administrator will also coordinate the combined emergency communications center to be set up later this year.

ADL-Systems, Inc., the Boston-based firm which is preparing a colocation plan, has pared down its earlier space recommendation.

City-County Implementation Commission director Randy Arno outlined the plan at a Wednesday meeting of the Civil Defense Advisory Board.

Initially, the consultants had said 2,500 square feet would be required to bring together communications personnel and equipment from the city Fire Department, Police Department and Sheriff's office.

Their latest opinion is that between 1,100 and 1,400 square feet will be adequate. They recommend remodeling the Civil Defense office area in the basement of the County-City building to house communications.

In the new center, office space would be allotted to the new coordinator and his secretary. The coordinator will not "run" the center, Arno said, but will be "responsible for (its) smooth operation."

Each of the three agencies initially moving telephone response and dispatch operations to the center will remain independent. The new coordinator won't actually give orders to police, fire, and sheriff's personnel, but will coordinate "housekeeping functions" and help "work out conflicts between agencies," Arno explained.

Acting civil defense director Dallas Johnson added that watching over communications will be only one of some 26 different emergency-related responsibilities of the new coordinator.

Arno said the consultants were able to cut space requirements by eliminating some elbow-room between desks and equipment.

He said that the center will have no acoustical problems. Sound buffers will deaden the din of everybody talking at once.

Johnson also announced the county's approval of a $59,000 contract with Smeal Manufacturing of Snyder, Nebraska, for a county-wide emergency siren system, to be installed later this year.

The system will bring a civil defense alert within hearing of nearly every county resident.

The Smeal contract will locate sirens outside of Lincoln, but other plans call for additional sirens inside the city limits, Johnson said.

Boys Town mail thief 'guilty'

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man pleaded guilty Wednesday in U.S. District Court to stealing some 150 letters from the Boys Town Post Office last year.

Judge Robert V. Denney accepted the pleas of Jerry Lee Gomez, 24, to two counts of a four-count complaint and deferred sentencing pending an investigation by the federal probation office.

The other two counts are to be dismissed at sentencing as part of a plea bargain that binds Gomez to make $2,177 in restitution for losses sustained by the U.S. Postal Service.

Gomez was a baseball and basketball star at Omaha Ryan High School, pitched for several years with Kansas City Royals' farm teams.

Boys Town estimates it may have lost thousands of dollars in contributions as a result of the thefts, but Edwin Hewitt, the home's director of administration, said Boys Town does not intend to seek restitution from Gomez.

On the advice of attorneys, Hewitt declined to give a dollar figure of the losses.

Gomez was charged last September with stealing about 375 letters addressed to Boys Town.

He had worked as a nonpostal mail clerk, entering the workroom area of the Boys Town post office periodically to pick up mail for Boys Town authorities. He resigned from Boys Town after being confronted with allegations of the thefts and admitted his guilt.

Burglars use stolen car

Lincoln police reported that late Tuesday or early Wednesday somebody stole an automobile at Scanlon's Crash Service, 134 N. 23rd, then apparently used the car in a burglary at Robin Mickie Junior High School.

Patrolman Barry Rogers observed the car, a brown 1976 Mercury Montego, in the school parking lot, 2500 N. 67th, at 4 a.m. while workmen were cleaning snow from the roof of the building.

When he checked again at 6 a.m., Rogers discovered the school had been entered and ransacked.

The burglars gained entry by breaking a door to the gymnasium and a window to the band room. In all, seven doors and three windows were broken for total damage of $400, police said.

A $75 guitar amplifier and a .22-caliber blank pistol valued at $125 were missing.

The stolen car belongs to Marcus N. Hansen, 1035 West Q St., who had left it at Scanlon's for repairs. The burglars entered the garage by breaking a window and climbing in, police said.

Nothing was stolen from Scanlon's besides the car, which was valued at $6,000.

Blazek sentence appealed

Attorneys for Mary Blazek, woman friend of convicted murderer Wesley Peery, filed notice in Lancaster District Court Wednesday of their intent to appeal her sentence.

Mrs. Blazek was sentenced Dec. 30 to serve two years in the women's center at York for conspiracy and to serve another six months in jail for lying to police officers during the Peery murder investigation.

Mrs. Blazek pleaded no contest to the charge she planned to help Peery escape from custody and that she lied to police.

Peery has been sentenced to die in the electric chair for killing Marianne Mitzner, a coin shop operator, on June 6, 1975.

Chief Public Defender Richard Goos said in the appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court that Mrs. Blazek's sentence was excessive and asked that the sentence be suspended pending a decision on her appeal.

Trial set for youth in November robbery

Lancaster County Judge Jeffere Chevront bound a 16-year-old youth over to district court for trial in connection with a Nov. 17 robbery at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, at 1600 N. 33rd St.

Nigel Davis, 2301 W St., waived his right to a preliminary hearing Wednesday. Davis is charged with one count of robbery and one count of using a firearm to commit a felony. He is scheduled to be arraigned in district court on Jan. 14. Judge Chevront continued Davis' bond at $10,000.

Another 16-year-old, Kevin Ginger, 2435 U St., also is waiting to be tried on identical charges. Charges against a third teenager have been dropped.

The teenagers are accused of taking about $100.

Police arrest teen suspect

Lincoln police apprehended a 15-year-old youth Wednesday whom they believe is the person responsible for robbing Atkins Market Monday morning of $115 in cash.

The teen has been listed as an escapee from the Juvenile Attention Center. Asst. Chief Roger LaPage said. The youth now is being held in the City-County Jail by order of the juvenile court judge, instead of being returned to the attention center.

LaPage said police also recovered a weapon believed to have been used in the mid-morning robbery of the market, at 1801 K St.

Home fights for license

The owners of an Omaha nursing home filed suit in Lancaster District Court Wednesday seeking to block the State Health Department from revoking the home's license.

Oral and Joyce Tague asked the court to reverse the Dec. 23, 1976, decision by Dr. Henry Smith, state health director, closing down the Fowler Manor nursing home in 30 days. The intermediate care home is at 2908 Fowler Ave. in Omaha.

The state ordered all residents of Fowler Manor, except one, to be moved within 30 days.

The Tagues contend that "irreparable harm and damage would be inflicted" upon them should the order be enforced.

Escaped inmate arraigned Wednesday

William G. Eutzy, a trusty at the Nebraska Penal Complex in Lincoln, was arraigned Wednesday on charges that he escaped from custody on Dec. 19, 1976.

Eutzy was granted rights to visit his sponsor in Lincoln on that day. However, he failed to return.

He turned himself over to Kansas City, Mo., authorities on New Year's Eve. Lancaster County Sheriff's deputies said Eutzy, 38, waived extradition and was flown to Lincoln Tuesday night.

Eutzy was sentenced in Lancaster County on Nov. 28, 1974, to serve from three to five years in the penitentiary for forgery.

County Judge Jeffere Chevront ordered Eutzy to be returned to the penitentiary without bond and said the defendant's preliminary hearing date will be set Jan. 18.

Indira Gandhi
... 'solution possible.'

Gandhi answers foe

(c) New York Times

New Delhi — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, making a significant gesture, has written a letter to one of her leading political opponents expressing the hope that "it would not be impossible to find solutions to the problems between opposition and government."

The letter was addressed to Asoka Mehta, a former cabinet minister, who was released last May after serving 10 months in jail under the present state of emergency.

According to Mehta, the letter, which was in response to two he wrote to Mrs. Gandhi seeking to open a dialogue, was the first substantive reply that she had made to any of the several appeals she had received in recent months from her leading political opponents.

GM sells 56% of cars sold in U.S.

Detroit (AP) — General Motors captured a record share of the domestic car market in 1976, with nearly 56 of every 100 new U.S.-built cars sold carrying the name of a GM division.

Official industry sales figures released Wednesday showed the world's largest automaker produced 4,800,716 of 8,606,573 American cars sold last year — a 55.8% share.

"It's the first time we've above 55," said a GM analyst who checked records dating back to 1926, when Ford Motor Co. dominated the industry.

GM's penetration of the market it shares with Ford, Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. was up sharply from a 53.2% share in 1975 and 49.6% in 1974.

Chrysler's share went up from 14.1% in 1975 to 15.1%. Ford declined nearly two points to 26.2% and AMC fell from 4.6% to 2.9%.

In 1976, each one-point change involved 86,000 cars worth more than $500 million at retail.

Analysts attributed GM's gain, in part, to a four-week strike against Ford last fall.

Crowley's closing

Detroit (AP) — The downtown Crowley's department store, opened in 1908, will close July 2, several months ahead of schedule, officials have said.

Malpractice ruling reversed

By Lynn Zerschling
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Supreme Court Wednesday said the Lancaster County District Court made a mistake when it dismissed a medical malpractice claim against a Lincoln doctor.

The district court had dismissed a claim filed by Marion R. Reese against the estate of Dr. Louis Davies on the grounds Mrs. Reese filed the claim too late.

The Supreme Court said she filed the claim within the required time period.

Mrs. Reese contended Dr. Davies was negligent in diagnosing and treating a lump in her breast during 20 consultations from April, 8, 1970, to April 26, 1973.

Dr. Davies died on Oct. 11, 1974, and Mrs. Reese filed a claim against his estate. She claimed Dr. Davies told her without ever conducting a needle biopsy, mammography or other tests that the growth in her breast was not cancerous.

On Nov. 9, 1972, the doctor told her the growth was a tumor and would have to be removed. However, Dr. Davies still didn't indicate to Mrs. Reese that the tumor was cancerous, nor did he perform any medical tests. He also didn't indicate to Mrs. Reese that she needed to have the surgery immediately.

Mrs. Reese hospitalized herself and on Nov. 13, 1972, a radical mastectomy was performed.

The county court and district court concluded her claim of negligence was barred by the statute of limitations.

In order to recover damages, the law provides that the claim must be filed within two years after the alleged act occurred. The law also provides if the cause of action isn't discovered within that two-year time span, a court action can be started within one year from the date of discovery.

The issue in this case, the Supreme Court said, was that time period.

Mrs. Reese claimed the diagnosis and treatment on Nov. 9, 1972, was negligent. Attorneys for the estate of Dr. Davies contended in a counter claim, however, that the Nov. 9 treatment was not negligent, but that the consultation occurring on Sept. 15, 1972, was the last date Mrs. Reese could use in her claim.

If the alleged negligent treatment had been on that date, the court noted, the woman's claim would have been barred.

The Supreme Court added that Dr. Davies correctly diagnosed the growth as a tumor. However, the court said, "This continuing failure by Dr. Davies to utilize diagnostic techniques commonly employed and recognized was alleged to be negligence on his part."

The doctor's failure on Nov. 9 to perform any of those tests "was simply the last event in a course of treatment which could be found to be negligent," the high court stated.

Since the Lancaster District Court made its decision on the earlier date, the Supreme Court reversed that decision.

A defendant charged with forcible rape should be sentenced under the old sexual assault law if the incident occurred before the new law went into effect in 1975, the State Supreme Court ruled Wednesday.

In reiterating that ruling, the high court knocked down a Howard County District Court decision which convicted Gerald G. Evans and Howard L. Hadenfeldt under the new law.

The sexual assault law didn't become effective until Aug. 24, 1975, eight days after the pair were accused of the rape.

Under plea bargaining, Evans and Hadenfeldt pleaded guilty to second degree sexual assault.

The defendants appealed their case contending the district court erred in finding that the victim had sustained serious personal injury.

The Howard County District Court had found that the victim had suffered serious emotional and mental injury as a result of the assault and sentenced the defendants to serve from three to five years in jail.

The Supreme Court ruled that the defendants should be sentenced under the prior law.

"We have held that the sexual assault law defined new crimes and was not merely amendatory of the rape statutes," the high court said in reversing the lower court decision.

In another decision Wednesday the Supreme Court reinstated an original sentence against a man who slammed the door on his way out of a courtroom and got resented on the spot.

The case involved Howard Snider who was sentenced by a Dawson County District Court judge for killing a steer.

Snider was sentenced to serve from one to two years in the penitentiary, with credit given for the time he had spent in jail waiting for the court hearing.

On his way out of the courtroom Snider slammed the door behind him "almost breaking the glass," the high court noted. The judge immediately ordered Snider back into the courtroom, informed him he was "a most unruly prisoner," and resented him. This time, the judge said Snider wouldn't get any credit for time he already had spent in jail.

The Supreme Court reinstated the original sentence since, the court said, a sentence takes effect as soon as it is imposed. The change was nullified.

The court added that the question of the defendant's contempt in slamming the courtroom door was not brought before it for consideration.

In other decisions, the Supreme Court:

—Affirmed Webster County District Court's one-year sentence of Richard W. Blankenbaker for violation of probation.

—Affirmed Hall County District Court's three-year sentence of Alfred K. Phillips for third offense drunk driving.

—Affirmed Keith County District Court's one-to-four-year prison term of Robert M. Solea on his conviction of possessing marihuana with intent to deliver, distribute or dispense.

—Affirmed Douglas County District Court's ruling in a condemnation action by the city of Omaha in which Francis P. Matthews Jr. and others alleged damages to two buildings on 19th Street between Farnam and Harney Streets.

—Affirmed Douglas County District Court's ruling favoring the city of Omaha which refused to adopt an ordinance permitting the use of mobile advertising signs utilized by Action-Ad of Iowa-Nebraska.

County has record year in real estate

Business in the Lancaster County register of deeds office, where all real estate transactions are recorded, was booming last year.

"It's the biggest year we've ever had — both in dollars and number of transactions," said Kenneth Ferguson, register of deeds.

The scorecard between 1976 and 1975 went like this:

— Value of property involved rose by 35%.

— Number of deeds for real estate which changed hands went up 22%.

— Total volume of paperwork, including deeds, mortgages and other legal documents, rose by 24%.

Records show that property value for 1976 transactions was $248,554,000 compared to a 1975 value of $161,322,222 and $145,717,500 in 1974.

But this figure is not the true total of county real estate business, Ferguson explained. Property purchased by governmental subdivisions is not counted; nor is property passed between relatives where no money changes hands.

The 1976 real estate activity brought money into government coffers — $273,409 in all. Of this amount, $205,056 went to the state government and $68,352 to Lancaster County.

NU's Cipriano praises Lincolmites Novak, Hedberg

By Mark Gordon
Staff Sports Writer

Terry Novak and Curt Hedberg may not realize it, but they're making Nebraska basketball history.

"We've never had two Lincoln kids contribute so much at the same time to our program since I've been here," noted Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano at Wednesday's press briefing. "Joel Kortus (a Plus X graduate now teaching and coaching at Tacoma, Wash.) was the only other Lincoln player who did so well."

Novak, a 6-4 junior, is a Lincoln Northeast graduate who has made perhaps the greatest progress in such a short time as any player Cipriano has had in 14 years as NU coach. Overlooked by everyone, Novak saw limited action his freshman and sophomore seasons.

Now he's a starting forward and his defensive and leadership abilities have been noteworthy this season.

"Novak has been the biggest surprise this season," Cipriano said. "He's done a good job defensively and has given us leadership because he knows his role."

"He's very aggressive. If you saw his play against Oklahoma (in a 66-56 NU win in the consolation finals last week at the Big Eight's Holiday Tournament in Kansas City, Mo.) you wouldn't believe his offensive board play. He really kept a lot of rebounds alive.

"Terry gives us mobility to get people open," Cipriano added.

Novak has started 12 of NU's 14 games. He'll undoubtedly earn a starting berth for Saturday's 7:35 p.m. Big Eight opener against Kansas State in the NU Sports Center.

Hedberg has seen considerable action as a reserve. The 6-8 sophomore was a stand-out at Lincoln East.

He was redshirted last season and apparently learned watching from the sidelines. He has already contributed 18 assists.

"Hedberg's really coming along for us," Cipriano said. "He's aggressive. When he knew he'd be playing, it really helped his confidence. I think he could be called on at any time."

Although Cipriano has been pleased with NU's 8-6 record in nonconference play, he stressed that mark could be better.

"Anytime you win six of 10 road games, you've got to be pleased. But I thought we'd do better at home (2-2). The problem is we've been ahead with nine or 10 minutes to go in all our games and I think we've been ahead at halftime of all but one of our games."

"There've been times when we've played well and we're capable of beating anyone in the conference," he added.

He praised NU's defensive effort the last four games. No team has scored more than 56 points against the Huskers.

"We're also pleased to be able to come back (after a first-round loss to Colorado at Kansas City). Our team's effort reminded us of our Hawaii trip (when NU lost the first game to Hawaii-Hilo, then beat Hawaii twice)," Cipriano said.

"Our kids had confidence they could play three in a row. We had our backs to the wall after the first day. We were thinking 0-3 for a while, but they came back," he said.

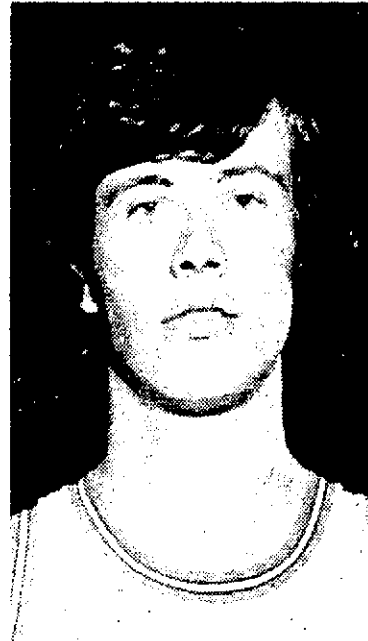

While Cipriano still labled Missouri as the Big Eight team to beat, he termed Colorado as a club that worries the NU staff.

"They play together with a lot of enthusiasm," he said of first-year coach Bill Blair's Buffaloes. "They did an excellent job defensively. They hung in there with some good teams at Kansas City (losing to Missouri and Kansas State). I don't think Colorado will win the title, but they're getting a 100% effort."

HUSKER NOTES — the season's largest crowd is expected for the Kansas State game Saturday, although good tickets still are available. A crowd of 10,516 watched Iowa in the first NU game ever in the Sport Center. Last year, was the year for visitors in the KSU series with NU winning at Manhattan, 65-59 and KSU winning in Lincoln, 65-53 at the NU Coliseum. Like the Huskers, KSU played two good games (wins over Oklahoma State and Colorado) and had one poor effort (an 81-44 loss to Kansas) at the Holiday Meet. This is the third straight season Nebraska has opened league competition with coach Jack Hartman's Wildcats.

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint

It's Snow Fine

If any of you neighborhood-type people see a bunch of trails running parallel to your sidewalks this week, don't fear. It's nothing to worry about.

It's just likely to be a crosscountry skier heading to or from work. With the street conditions as they are, crosscountry skiing might well be the safest means of travel to and from the job for a few days.

Then our outstate correspondent Dean Terrill writes of a Fairbury pair who'd rather catfish in the winter than in the summer — or so it seems.

Harry Watson and Howard Haddix, "two of the area's most skilled catfishermen," and a friend, Daniel Scheer of Seward, don't give up on the fishing in the Little Blue River even in December, according to Terrill.

"A recent try on the Little Blue River yielded 24 channel cats, many in the three-pound class," writes Terrill. "Nine carp added to the catch and Dan had a nice yellow of about 20 pounds on for a while."

The winter anglers put worms through the shock test in the cold water as their bait. It's typical fishing, according to Watson, who says, "As long as there's open water, you can catch channels all winter. Last February was especially good. I caught 76 that month alone."

No sense in waiting until spring to wet a line, huh fellas?

Federal Bills Coming

With the beginning of the 95th U.S. Congress, environmentalists might keep their eyes open for a few federal bills likely to filter through at one time or another.

Some of the legislation involves unfinished items, such as the Federal Water Pollution Control Act and the Clean Air Act, both trying to improve and clarify their standings.

Other leftovers, according to the National Wildlife Federation, which serves as a watchdog for environmental issues, include bills on strip mining (dealing largely with coal operations), energy research funding and development, natural resource exploitation on public lands and the national land use policy.

Following state successes, the feds are considering a nationwide "bottle bill" to require refundable deposits on beverage containers as incentives for reuse and recycling.

Another strong possibility will be the following through of an excise tax on certain items, such as binoculars, camera equipment, field guides, wild bird seed, bird feeders and bird houses, to fund nongame wildlife programs. This would be along the line of the current Pittman-Robertson and Dingell-Johnson Acts which fund fish and wildlife programs on a matching fund basis with states.

A similar bill failed to clear the Senate Commerce Committee last session. That would have put an excise tax on reloading components (shot, primers, powder, bullets, etc.) to help fund hunter education and or target range construction and wildlife restoration throughout the nation.

Those are likely to be some of the issues sportsmen will have an interest in during the coming months from Congress.

Husker gal cagers win

Maryville, Mo. — Kathy Hawkins and Jan Crouch combined for 46 points Wednesday night to lead the University of Nebraska-Lincoln women's basketball team to a 71-57 first-round victory over University of Missouri-St. Louis here in the Northwest Missouri Invitational basketball tournament.

Hawkins led 25 points, while Crouch added 21 as the Lincoln team moved into tonight's semifinal clash against Kansas University by hitting 43 percent of its shots from the field. Northwest Missouri State will meet the University of Nebraska-Omaha in the other semifinal contest.

"I was pretty pleased with our defense," said UNL coach George Nicodemus.

Vikings Prepare For Sunday

Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton (10) hands off to Brent McClanahan (33) during Vikings' drill.

Oelschlager rolls 300

By Bob Moyer
Staff Sports Writer

In case you're wondering what it takes to shoot a 300 game on the new ABC lane condition rule, ask Dennis Oelschlager.

Why? Because Oelschlager became the first Lincolnite to accomplish that feat during 1976-77 Fall leagues.

Bowling on lanes five and six at Plaza, the right-handed Oelschlager said he was shooting over second arrow enroute to the perfect game.

Oelschlager said he was lined up fairly directly towards the pocket and used an Ebonite Gyro II bowling ball.

Oelschlager said he really didn't get nervous until the 10th frame.

"Then I got so nervous I told myself to just try and hit my spot. I guess everybody quit bowling around me, but I didn't even notice it," said Oelschlager.

Oelschlager's first nine shots were all good ones, with only a fourth frame light-mixer among the group.

But the 10th frame was a different story. The nervous Oelschlager threw the ball on the nose and carried on his first shot, then threw a good ball for his 11th strike and finally completed the perfect game with a Brooklyn shot.

"The first shot went up high and carried and I didn't waste

Dennis Oelschlager ... rolls 300 game much time shooting the next ball," said Oelschlager. "After that strike I took more time, sat down, took some deep breaths and decided that wasn't going to do me any good. Then I got up and threw the last shot."

"I wasn't surprised I got a strike on the last shot because when I'm bowling well, I carry a lot of crossovers," added Oelschlager.

Oelschlager has been bowling for four years in league play and has bowled in two leagues the past couple of seasons.

A graduate student at Nebraska, Oelschlager's first semester night class, however, forced him to bowl in just one league this year until last week when he was able to rejoin his Wednesday night league. In his one league so far this year, he is averaging 174. Last year his high average was 178.

Oelschlager's best previous game was 278 and he said that he has had eight strikes in a row several times before so he felt "you have to hope there is a possibility of shooting 300."

Oelschlager said he felt he might do well Wednesday night. "I threw one practice shot and it was a strike. I felt really relaxed throwing the ball. I saw a lot of guys forcing the ball and throwing it too hard but I knew I would do well because I was throwing so easy."

After it was over, Oelschlager said, "I really felt good. I knew I was lucky. I've seen a lot of guys who deserved it (300 game) more who get 297 or 298."

Ironically, Oelschlager's wife missed her husband's moment of glory. She had intended to watch her husband bowl all three games but was involved in a minor car mishap and was unable to arrive until the third game.

Oelschlager shot his 300 the first game of the set and came back with 178 and 192 efforts for a 670 series, which was also his personal best.

Oelschlager did not attach tremendous significance to getting the 300 game this season when the lanes are supposedly tougher. "It helps. It makes you feel better. But I'm just happy to have gotten it."

Sweeney, McKeone pace Hastings' win

By Ken Hambleton
State College Writer

Hastings — Sophomore guard Doug Sweeney and senior forward Kert McKeone plus a devastating zone defense helped Hastings College turn what should have been a war into a rout Wednesday night as the Broncos clobbered Kearney, 115-83, in Kiewit Gymnasium.

The game began with the teams sharing the lead four times as Kearney's Loren Killian and the rest of the Antelopes connected on seven of their first eight field goals and Hastings, seven of 12.

But with 10 minutes left in the half and Kearney in the lead 27-26, the Broncos switched to a 2-1-2 zone defense and forced the Antelopes to commit five turnovers in the next five minutes and miss 11 field goal attempts. Meanwhile, Sweeney and McKeone helped Hastings to a 42-33 lead with 4:14 left.

Doug Hahn and Steve Curtiss helped the Antelopes clip the margin to seven points with 11 seconds left but two free throws by Don Trotter and a stuff by Denis Lessor at the buzzer gave the Broncos a 54-43 halftime edge.

"We went to the zone and I don't know if that was directly responsible for the change, but from then on it was our ball game," said Hastings coach

Lynn Farrell.

The Broncos continued to pull away from the shaken Antelopes and with Paul Bergman, Hastings' 6-8 junior center, shutting out Kearney center Tim Mohanna in the second half, the Broncos coasted to the win.

Sweeney, a sophomore from Aurora, almost stole the show from the hot-shooting Broncos, as he looped and spun in for 10 field goals in 14 attempts, six of those baskets on driving layups.

"He was really amazing out there and seemed to do something even more wild every time he came down the court," said teammate McKeone. Sweeney finished the game with a career high of 24 points.

"You'd have to wait a long time to see another performance like he gave tonight," said Farrell. "He was kind of like a Doctor J."

McKeone also put on a good show, hitting 12 of 20 field goals and scoring 20 points.

Hastings hit 46 of 80 field goal attempts, while Kearney managed 35 of 88. One of the explanations for the Broncos' superior shooting was superior rebounding. The Broncos held a 51-32 rebounding edge with Bergman leading the way with 12 caroms.

The Broncos also forced 12 first-half Kearney turnovers and at one time held Kearney without a field goal for seven minutes in the first half while scoring 20 points themselves.

"The zone helped us get good position for rebounding and when you shut Kearney off from getting the second and third shot, you really hurt their offense," said Farrell. "Our kids were just playing too well to let them come back and we seemed to be able to do the things we wanted to do."

Hastings, now 8-2, suffered its last loss in early December when Kearney took a two-point decision. The Broncos travel to Fort Hays Saturday, while Kearney, now 5-4, will meet Doane in Crete on Monday.

Big Eight coaches nix NCAA 'need' grants

By Doug Tucker
AP Sports Writer

Kansas City — Big Eight football coaches would rather have King Kong lined up against them at middle guard than go prying into a high school kid's family finances.

Bud Moore, for one, deplores the injustice he feels it would cause.

Bob Devaney is afraid it would leave football coaches wide open for an invasion of privacy suit.

Barry Switzer's blood pressure begins to soar at the mention of it.

And they all agree on another crucial point: It stands a good chance of becoming law next week.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association opens its annual convention next Monday in Miami, Fla., and prominent on the agenda are seven proposals commonly referred to as "need."

It means that athletic scholarships would be granted to an athlete on the basis of his "need," which is to say according to the financial situation of his family.

The need idea was kicked around at the last NCAA convention and came within a whisker of passing. The whole idea is to cut athletic costs, which have been zooming.

"I disagree with it totally," says Moore, head football coach at Kansas.

"If some need proposal is passed, you're going to get involved in more than just selling a kid on going to your university. The biggest problem is that it would punish some families for being successful. Take a kid that comes from a family where the daddy is lazy and has done nothing to improve his family's situation. That daddy would be rewarded and the daddy who worked hard, saved his money and did all he could for his family would be punished."

Proposals offered by the North-Central Conference, the Pac-8 and the University of California-Berkeley would require that the award of financial aid in all sports, including football and basketball, be made on the basis of need only, except for tuition and fees.

North's McGee gears for prep All-American honor

By Randy York
Prep Sports Editor

Is Mike McGee Nebraska's first bona fide prep All-American basketball player?

Bob Murray, McGee's coach at Omaha North, doesn't bat an eyelash when he answers with a resounding yes.

"Mike McGee is an all-American," Murray insists. "He was the Player of the Year in Nebraska last year and if you thought he was unbelievable then, you ought to see him now. He's improved tremendously."

Metro Conference coaches no doubt would agree. They've tried every defensive maneuver but tripping (and Murray's not so sure of that) to stop McGee this season.

All have been to no avail. The 6-4, 190-pound senior is averaging 41 points and 15.6 rebounds a game. He led North to the Metro Holiday Tournament championship with scoring productions of 50 against Gross, 43 against Ryan, 36 against Burke and 45 in Monday night's title game against Northwest.

"He can do everything that needs to be done with a basketball," Murray says.

"He can shoot. He can rebound. He can jump and he can play defense. There's not a player in the Metro who can beat him one-on-one."

McGee started the season in impressive fashion, blitzing defending state champion Creighton Prep with 42 points. He hit 36 the next time out against Central, then dropped to a season low 35 in an overtime loss to Millard.

"He's like a racehorse," Murray says. "He just goes and goes. We ask him to carry the whole load. I know it's inevitable he'll run out of steam sometime, but he hasn't yet."

McGee's "time" may come this weekend when North (5-2) plays at Westside Friday night, then visits Lincoln for a Saturday afternoon date against Southeast (6-1) at Johnson Gym.

"I don't know if he'll be at full speed," Murray said Tuesday. "Mike hurt his foot against Northwest and was hobbling around school today. I'm keeping him off the foot Tuesday and Wednesday. We really need him to say the least. He's 41 points of our 78-point average."

McGee is hitting 47% from the field (105 of 223) and 80% from the free throw line (77 of 97). In the first two games of the Metro tourney against Gross and Ryan, he converted 35 of 37 free throws.

"He takes a real physical pounding every time he steps on the court," Murray says. "but people love to come and watch him play. He draws a crowd. They just shake their heads when they walk out the door. He's the best I've ever seen in Omaha."

Murray is enough of a realist to know McGee's effectiveness can be minimized, "but no one's accomplished it yet," he points out.

How can McGee be stopped?

"Well, five fouls would take him out of there," Murray answers. "Burke doubled teamed him and held him to 36. I don't know. I suppose someone eventually will get the job done. But I don't know how they'll do it."

In games involving Lincoln teams this week, it's:

Lincoln Plus X (4-2) at Omaha Holy Name (5-1). Thursday night — The Bolts win to set up a Friday night showdown at Lexington.

Lincoln Southeast (6-1) v. Lincoln High (3-3). Friday night, Pershing Auditorium — Lincoln High is out of the gate like a Missouri in football — win the big games and lose the average ones. It's time for the Links to turn giant-killer and spoil Southeast's No. 1 ratings bid.

Kearney (5-1) at Lincoln East (3-2),

Friday night — The Bearcats are ratings conscious and in need of a major scalp to merit consideration.

Lincoln Northeast (3-2) at Hastings (5-1). Friday night — The Rockets return by far the most in a rematch of last year's state tourney opener. That may not mean a thing, but it should.

Lincoln Plus X (4-2) at Lexington (3-1). Friday night — The Minutemen are prime No. 1 Class B ratings material.

Omaha North (5-2) v. Lincoln Southeast (6-1). Saturday, Johnson Gym, 2 p.m. — it's Omaha's December best against Lincoln's December best. Too bad this is a matinee matchup. It should be a sellout under ordinary circumstances. North's Mike McGee is worth the price of admission. But look for Southeast to manufacture the best defense yet on the 41-point scorer. A hunch says the Knights to win because North faces more of a fatigue factor.

Omaha Central (5-2) v. Lincoln High (3-3). Saturday night, Johnson Gym — If the Links best Southeast Friday night, a loss is seen here. If they lose Friday night, look for a win here. There is no intention to knock the Missouri syndrome, just a crystal ball effort to pick up on the right beat. A sweep would be sweet, even if the odds are against it.

Omaha Burke (2-4) at Lincoln East (3-2). Saturday night — During the past few years, this rivalry has been as spirited as any. Both teams can play physical. At times, Burke's Jim Gregory's shooting is so hot he could fry eggs.

Omaha Benson (3-2) v. Lincoln Northeast (3-2). Saturday night, Nebraska Wesleyan's Ira Taylor Gym — Neither team has lived up to preseason state championship expectations. Don't lose faith, however, or bet against either one of them.

Former University of Nebraska defensive end Mike Wynn has been named to the University of Minnesota coaching staff as interior line coach under Cal Stoll.

Wynn, 29, who ended his Nebraska career in 1970 and then played one year with the Oakland Raiders in the National Football League, replaces Norm Parker who resigned last month to take an assistant's job at Illinois.

"We are pleased that Mike will be with us," Stoll said. "He's worked extensively with the defensive lineman and will be a valuable addition to our staff." Wynn's appointment will become official upon approval by the University of Minnesota Board of Regents.

Other football

Missouri quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz and Stanford wide receiver Tony Hill have been picked as the offensive co-captains for the North team for Saturday's Senior Bowl football game. Linebacker Terry Beeson of Kansas was chosen defensive captain.

California quarterback Joe Roth has announced that he has cancer but that doctors have cleared him to play in the Hula Bowl game as well as another all-star game in Japan. Roth, who had a malignant melanoma removed more than two years ago, said a second tumor was found a few weeks ago and he is currently undergoing chemotherapy treatment.

Bill Battle, who resigned last November as Tennessee's head football coach, says he has no interest in a job as an assistant coach at the University of Kansas.

The Denver City Council has approved a new lease agreement for Mile High Stadium with the Denver Broncos which calls for the NFL team to pay a rent of eight percent of the gate receipts until stadium construction bonds are retired in 1990 and five percent thereafter.

Basketball

Iowa State's Dean Uthoff continues to lead the Big Eight Conference in rebounding, according to the latest league statistics. Uthoff, a 6-10 freshman, pulled down 107 rebounds in his first 10 games, an average of 10.7 per contest. In addition, three Cyclones are listed among the conference's free throw leaders. As a team, Iowa State ranks third in the conference in free throw percentage (69 percent) and fourth in rebounding, but seventh in scoring and eighth in field goal percentage.

University of San Francisco basketball coach Bob Gaillard, whose team stands atop the college basketball ratings, says, "It's fine to be No. 1, but a top ranking carries its hazards. We expect to get a lot of pressure from our opponents, especially teams that are in a position to make something of a mediocre, fair or good season by beating us."

Other Sports

Chicago Cubs owner Phil Wrigley has testified by deposition that he believed baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn had the authority to void the sales of three Oakland players by A's owner Charles Finley. But, he added, he believed Kuhn's action was a mistake.

Veteran shortstop Bud Harrelson and first baseman-outfielder John Milner were among six players signing 1977 contracts with the New York Mets, the club has announced. Others include pitchers Randy Tate and Craig Swan, third baseman Roy Staiger and outfielder Lee Mazzilli.

The pro golf tour, now approaching $10 million in value, kicks off another long, rich season today with Johnny Miller heading an extremely strong field in this year's $200,000 Phoenix Open. Minimum value of this year's 40-plus tournament tour will be $9.3 million.

Although no actual negotiations have taken place, Thomas G. Cousins, majority stockholder of the National Hockey League's Atlanta Flames, says "contacts" have been made by representatives of the Thomas Holding Group concerning purchase of the financially-troubled franchise.

OU Falls, 68-50

Tulsa (UPI) — Oral Roberts University's Anthony Roberts scored 18 second half points Wednesday night to ignite the Titans to a 68-50 victory over Oklahoma.

Roberts, who had only two for 11 from the field in the first half, led all scorers with 24 points while teammate Chuck Dahms knocked in 16 and Arnold Nugger 10.

OU's leaders were John McCullough with 13 and Cary Carrabine with 10.

Alvin Scott of ORU led in rebounds with 14 and ORU out-rebounded the Sooners 43-35.

OU was ahead 81-28 at the half, but ORU outscored the Sooners 40-19 in the second half to win its ninth game against four losses. Oklahoma is 8-4 for the year.

ORU shot 45 per cent from the field and Oklahoma 37.3 per cent.

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State's balanced scoring, rebounding, and freethrow shooting, led by guard Fred Stevenson, overwhelmed Missouri Southern 88-72 Wednesday night in a non-conference game here.

The Cowboys placed four men in double figures, paced by Stevenson with 23. Oklahoma State out-rebounded the Lions 43-24 and hit 34 of 39 freethrows.

The Lions hit 20 of 29 foul shots in the rough and tumble game. Center Russell Bland was the leading Lion scorer with 23 points and rebounder with 5.

Both teams evened their records as Oklahoma State jumped to 6-6 and the Lions fell to 4-4.

Southeast stops GI

Grand Island — The Southeast girls' basketball team, playing with just four girls the final minute and a half of the game, defeated Grand Island here Wednesday night, 64-50, setting a school record for total score.

After Pam VanNeste, Kelly O'Neal, Candy Hoffman and Tammy Poe fouled out, and Southeast was unable to play some reserves after they used up their eligibility for the evening, LSE was forced to play four girls.

"Their poise and stability really pulled us through," LSE coach Jerry Harkrader said of his team. "We had 17 fouls in the first half, and five of our six girls had three each. But we just had balanced scoring throughout the game."

VanNeste set a school record with 25 points, as she and Hoffman (with 10 points) led LSE.

Southeast, now 4-2, will host Northeast Tuesday at 8 p.m.

NWU cagers stumble, 84-77

Colorado Springs, Colo. — Colorado College pulled away from Nebraska Wesleyan here Wednesday night in the final three minutes to claim an 84-77 victory over the Plainsmen.

Trailing 49-40 at the half, Wesleyan pulled to within two at 74-72 with three minutes left in the game, but Colorado College, led by Tom Beckmann, suddenly couldn't miss and gained its fourth win against six losses. Beckmann led all scorers with 37 points, 26 of which came in the first half.

When Wesleyan pulled within two, an NWU player was called for a foul. Plainsmen coach Irv Peterson jumped up to protest the call and was called for a technical. When Peterson asked about the technical, another technical was called.

Beckmann sank four free throws on the technicals and led the Colorado College rally.

The Plainsmen, now 5-6, will host the Avila Avalanche Saturday at 2 p.m. at Taylor Gym.

AIWA limits financial aid

Memphis, Tenn. (AP) — In a flurry of parliamentary maneuvering Wednesday, the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women limited financial aid for women athletes to tuition and fees.

The regulation, adopted on a 179-155 roll call vote, prohibited the AIWA's more than 800 member institutions from providing room and board to their women athletes.

Ousted cadets can't rejoin class of 1977

Washington (AP) — Cadets ousted in West Point's biggest cheating scandal lost their battle to rejoin the class of 1977 Wednesday when Army Secretary Martin R. Hoffmann ruled they could not return before early summer.

Hoffmann said it would be "unwise" to readmit the 151 cadets caught in the honor code scandal before they had completed a year's suspension.

The order means that the bulk of the cadets will return in July, with a few returning in late June. They had hoped to return at the start of the second semester on Jan. 24 in order to graduate in June, a move possible by undergoing extra training and enrolling in extra courses.

The secretary also said at a news conference that he was adopting nearly all the recommendations made Dec. 15 by a panel headed by former astronaut Frank Borman, now chief executive of Eastern Air Lines.

The panel had called for an end to punishment and legal proceedings arising out of the scandal and for readmission of the ousted cadets "as soon as possible."

It also urged modification of the honor code which requires that cadets convicted of violating the code be expelled. It said less stringent penalties should be permitted.

In addition, the panel said cadets should be given an alternative to turning in suspected violators, as now required. It suggested that cadets be permitted to confront suspected violators.

The honor code states that "a cadet will not lie, cheat or steal, nor tolerate those who do."

Hoffmann said he agreed to "an extraordinary" change in Army regulations that would result in expulsion becoming the usual rather than the mandatory punishment.

But he left to the corps of 4,000 cadets the responsibility for providing lesser penalties at the level of Cadet Honor Committee prosecution and for lifting the requirement to turn in suspected violators.

Billy cited for selling Sunday beer

Atlanta (UPI) — Billy Carter, brother of President-elect Jimmy Carter, has been cited by the State Revenue Department for allegedly selling beer on Sunday from his filling station, authorities said Wednesday.

Ed Vaughn, director of the department's alcohol and tobacco tax division, said the younger Carter was one of seven Sumter County residents given citations by agents Tuesday after an undercover investigation that began in late November.

He said publicity about Carter's beer-drinking had nothing to do with the action and that local officials had asked that the probe be conducted.

"This is no special deal. It's a routine thing for us," he said. "A part-time employee of Mr. Carter sold an agent an eight-pack of beer," said Vaughn.

PUBLIC NOTICE
The Nebraska Public Power District has applied to the EPA for a permit to construct a 650 megawatt coal-fired steam electric generating unit which will be designated Gerald Station Unit No. 2. The application was made according to the requirements of the prevention of significant deterioration (PSD) regulations (40 C.F.R. § 52.21). Gerald Station Unit No. 2 will be located in Sutherland, Nebraska. Gerald Station Unit No. 1 is under construction on the same site. Because Unit No. 1 received construction permits prior to January 1, 1975, it was not subject to federal PSD review and its emissions will not be included in the air quality deterioration increment. According to the Nebraska Rules and Regulations, only Unit No. 2 requires a state PSD preconstruction permit, but emissions from both Units No. 1 and 2 will be included in the deterioration increment.
The federal PSD regulations require that emissions from an affected source cause no increase in the ambient air quality levels of SO2 and/or particulate matter greater than the applicable air quality deterioration increment; that the facility be designed to control emissions to the degree which represents the use of the best available control technology (BACT); and that construction be carried out on a continuous basis.

A low-sulfur coal and an electrostatic precipitator will be used at Gerald Station Unit No. 2 to meet the BACT requirement for SO2 and particulates, respectively.
The EPA's dispersion modeling calculations indicate that Unit No. 2 will not cause a violation of either the SO2 or particulate air quality deterioration increments.
Based on the information available at this time, the Regional Administrator's preliminary decision is available for public inspection at the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control, P.O. Box 94653, State House Station, Lincoln, Nebraska 68509; and EPA, 1735 Baltimore, Kansas City, Missouri 64108. The Region VII Administrator invites comments from all interested parties. Comments will be accepted from January 6, 1977, through February 4, 1977, and should be sent to Donald A. Townley, Director, Air and Hazardous Materials Division, Environmental Protection Agency, 1735 Baltimore, Kansas City, Missouri 64108.
The final approval or disapproval of the application will be made after considering all the relevant comments.

Iranian Oil Co. sales drop since price rose

Tehran, Iran (AP) — The National Iranian Oil Co. reported Wednesday its sales are 10% below expected levels, or down more than $6 million daily, as a result of the split price decision among oil exporting countries.

With Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates selling at lower prices, the Iranian company said 25 new customers have reduced their Iranian purchases from 12 million barrels daily to 693,000 barrels a day. It added production is being cut as a result.

The Iranian report of a sales drop followed reports of similar difficulties in Kuwait and a lower than agreed price increase in Indonesia.

In Washington a U.S. State Department official said the OPEC price decisions will have the same impact on U.S. consumers as an $11 billion tax hike Julius L. Katz, assistant secretary of state for economic and business affairs, told a Senate hearing the impact will be lessened by increased Saudi production.

Iranian sales to new customers are separate from the 4.5 million barrels per day which Iran sells through a consortium of Western oil companies. There was no indication that the consortium was also taking less oil.

Iran's loss of sales to the Saudis and the emirates followed the price boost split at last month's meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The 11-nation majority, including Iran, decided on a 10% price increase starting Jan. 1, to be followed by a 5% increase July 1, while Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates chose to increase prices by 5% for the whole year.

As a result the standard price per barrel of Saudi oil is $12.11 while equivalent oil from the OPEC majority would be $12.70. Actual prices vary according to grade and shipping distances.

Saudi Arabia has announced it will step up production to handle at least part of the increased demand for its lower priced oil.

Qatar radio on Tuesday quoted Kuwait's oil minister, Abdul-Mutaleb Kazem, as saying that demand for Kuwaiti oil was also reduced. He said he had not decided what action to take and reported he was particularly concerned about buyers under contract to take specific quantities, the report said.

His alternatives appeared to be to cut prices or cut production.

Another Kuwait minister, Abdul Aziz Hussein, said production would not be cut.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

ANYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Astrological Forecast by Sidney Omarr

A Cancer woman corrects me. "Stop saying Cancer equates love with food." A lot of us are overweight and in love, but that doesn't mean the two go together. Cancer women are super-sensitive—they are easily upset by the opposite sex, and then they could go on an eating binge. But please be more understanding!

Comment: I agree. Cancer women are loving, sensitive, practical, loyal, affectionate and usually they are hungry.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on improving style, creativity, changing priorities into facts. Know your own strength—be aware, too, of weak points. You are in a strong bargaining position. Know it and act as if you are aware of it. Means exude confidence!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle high—take initiative, be a self-starter. Emphasize independence of thought, action. You gain added recognition. You find assignment. Any person pays meaningful compliment. You get long-distance message which aids in solving dilemma.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You gain some rare insights. You get behind scenes glimpses. Leo Aquarius persons figure prominently. A closed door means a new focus. Know your independence, original approach, display of courage, where convictions are concerned.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A friend offers to teach—be willing without giving up right to make your own final decisions. Message will be clear. Aquarius is very much in picture. Your intuition is on target. Know it and follow through on "hunch."

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Prestige may be on the line. Be flexible. Maintain balance, humor. Expand horizons. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. One who "pulls strings" might invite you to social affair. Be gracious, receptive. Element of luck or timing is in evidence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good moon aspect coincides now with long-distance calls, educational projects, journeys. You have chance to break through red tape, to fear down for ultimate purpose of rebuilding basic structure.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Delve deep for information, knowledge, insights. Emphasis on values—and relationship with partner or mate. Your sense of security is heightened. You could be "outaged" by coasts, faeces, Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons are in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Personal environment, sense of love, desire to be needed—these are highlighted. Legal assurances dominate. You want contract, ring on finger, a commitment which states you are the one-and-only. You're likely to get what you want.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid direct confrontations. Take low road. Means play cards close to chest. Be discreet. You will instinctively know when others "tell" the truth or otherwise. Another Pisces—and a Virgo—play featured roles.

IF JANUARY 6TH IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual voice, a "sweet tooth" love of home, security, music and art. You have come through confusing period, will not be on more solid ground. April will be your most significant month of 1977. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life.

Warner sees difficult fiscal path ahead

By Dick Holman
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's first new Appropriations Committee chairman in 16 years said Wednesday he expects the job "to be very difficult this time" as the 1977 austerity session gets underway.

Sen Jerome Warner of Waverly triumphed 28-19 over Omaha Sen Glenn Goodrich to head the powerful budget panel. Its reins have been held continuously since 1961 by Richard Marvel of Hastings, who stepped down to seek and win the chairmanship of the Legislative Council's executive board.

"Sometimes," Warner looked ahead from salad days to the pending spending agonies, "we're going to have to say no to good programs, particularly new ones" and to expansion of existing government operations, however worthy.

The 49-year-old farmer, who began his fifth Unicameral term Wednesday, said "Major changes are going to be gradual" in the budget-making process because of a firmly entrenched format that was set in motion anew last year.

"Generally," Warner said, "I hope we can direct the budget process so it's more a discussion of functions (which) an agency performs," scrutinizing closely whether they should be continued or restricted, rather than focusing narrowly on dollar increases or decreases.

"I accept the definition of budget as a method in which the Legislature implements policy" via purse-strings for each agency, Warner said. But "I would not want to start out on the basis that X-million dollars are anticipated at current tax rates and (arbitrarily) divide up" the total projected revenues.

Regarding any innovations, the veteran lawmaker draws on experience accumulated since 1962 representing the rural 25th District north and east of Lincoln. He has chaired the Legislative Council, Committees on Education, Government and Military Affairs, Rules, a current higher education coordination study, and was Speaker of the Legislature in 1969-70.

That took him on a flashback of a dual anniversary. Warner was nine years old when the two-house Legislature was changed to a one-chamber body exactly 40 years ago Wednesday, the day he saw his father Charles elected first Speaker of the Unicameral.

Since then, Warner has heard "all three buzzwords" associated with progressive budget-making: zero-based budgeting (starting from scratch for each agency rather than from a continuation dollar base upward), performance auditing, and sunset laws (for agency self-destruct if its continuation can't be justified in periodic reviews).

"Any good budget process ought to contain" all three of those elements, Warner said, but "not necessarily" as formally adopted requirements.

Rather, "I would support the concept of legislative oversight" possibly as a separate function led from the budget helm. Warner has been an advocate of government performance auditing since 1970.

New senators form caucus

Associated Press

The Unicameral's new lawmakers have formed a freshman caucus, according to Falls City Sen Nelson Merz.

Reports indicated that 11 of the 13 freshmen legislators attended an initial caucus after Wednesday's opening day session. Lincoln Sen JoAnn Maxey was absent though she was on hand during the day, and Omaha Sen Bill Brennan missed it all. He was hospitalized.

"I feel this could be a nucleus that could stay as a group maybe for the next four years," Merz said in an interview.

Merz said he organized the caucus "after thinking up the idea at about 4:30 a.m. today."

The freshmen decided to ask Neligh Sen John DeCamp to meet with them Thursday to explain a proposed rules change.

Veteran lawmakers said other freshmen caucuses were formed in the past, but only lasted a few weeks.

"It's good for them, but I don't think you'll see them voting in a block," said one veteran legislator who asked not to be identified.

"I don't want them to think that I or anyone else is against their caucus or critical of it," the veteran said.

They can help one another with common interests especially in getting familiar with things but their interests are too diversified for them to be a consistent voting bloc," the veteran lawmaker said.

Bereuter sets site on personal goals

Taking aim instead at government "overregulation" of small businesses, communities, farmers and ranchers, State Sen Douglas Bereuter stopped short Wednesday his bid to head the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

The Utica senator had announced his candidacy Nov. 10 but on the Unicameral's opening day, Bereuter wasn't nominated.

He said he notified his colleagues Monday that "because of the decision for most of the Omaha senators to vote as a bloc, I wouldn't have enough votes" to wage successfully a three-way battle with Sens Jerome Warner of Waverly (the winner) and Glenn Goodrich of Omaha.

"My objectives the next three years both inside and outside the Legislature," said the educator and community development consultant, wouldn't have allowed enough time to run the Budget Committee "the way I'd want to run it."

He noted that "No deals were cut whatsoever" to throw his support either to Warner or Goodrich as a trade-off for another Unicameral post. He stepped out of the running too because there "are some things I want to accomplish," notably passage of his 10 bills, "most of which are controversial." He'll serve on the Legislative Council's executive board and the Administrative Agency Rules Committee. He indicated he'll seek to chair the latter.

Appropriations panel has 5 new members

Three of Lancaster County's six senators will serve on the Legislature's sharply revamped Appropriations Committee.

Five of the nine committee members did not serve on the budget unit in the 1975 or 1976 legislative sessions.

Sen Jerome Warner of Waverly was named chairman by the Legislature Wednesday.

Sen Steve Fowler of Lincoln will join Sen Shirley Marsh of Lincoln on the appropriations unit if the Legislature approves Committee on Committee recommendations.

New members are Sens William Hasebrook of West Point, Ron Cope of Kearney, Myron Rumery of North Platte, Warner and Fowler.

Holdover members include Sens Glenn Goodrich and John Savage, both of Omaha. Douglas Bereuter of Utica and Marsh, former Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings and Vice Chairman Robert Clark of Sidney left the committee for other legislative assignments.

Average legislator profiled

Associated Press

People who are acquainted with the 49 Nebraska state senators see them as individuals.

But if one hypothetical, average state senator were created from a pool of their characteristics, that legislator would resemble the following:

First, he would be male. Sens Bernice Labedz of Omaha and JoAnn Maxey and Shirley Marsh of Lincoln are the only female senators.

He would be married, few senators are not.

He would be a registered Republican. There are 18 Democrats, 29 Republicans and two independents in the constitutionally nonpartisan Legislature.

He could be a businessman, but maybe a farmer. Those two groups are almost equally represented in the Unicameral.

He would live in or around a city of about 25,000 population. The range of Nebraska cities represented includes Anselmo, population 180, and Omaha, with about 350,000 inhabitants.

He would be about 51 years old. The oldest is Sen Myron Rumery, 71, of North Platte. The youngest is Samuel Cullen, 22, of Hemingford.

And he would have about four years of legislative experience. Sen Richard Marvel of Hastings has been a legislator for 21 years. Thirteen others are beginning their first terms in this session.

Chairmanship loss uncharacteristic of Fowler

By Don Walton
Star Staff Writer

Twenty-six-year-old Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln suffered an uncharacteristic political setback Wednesday.

Fowler was one of three legislative committee chairmen who were unseated when lawmakers chose their committee leaders for the 1977 session. Sen. Walter George of Blair snatched away Fowler's chairmanship of the Urban Affairs Committee on a surprising 26 to 21 vote.

Fowler had been chairman since 1975 when he was chosen in the midst of his first Unicameral term.

The young Lincoln senator is far more accustomed to victory than defeat.

Fowler was elected student government president at the University of Nebraska's Lincoln campus before he upset incumbent Lincoln Sen. William Swanson for a seat in the Legislature in 1972. He was then 22 years old.

Last November he won a second term in the Unicameral despite a strong challenge in the 27th District. Why did he lose his chairmanship Wednesday?

I assume I did not get the support out of Omaha that I had anticipated," Fowler said.

One possible reason for Fowler's defeat may have been the earlier success of other Lancaster County senators in winning the Speakership, the chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee and the chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee.

Fowler is not ready to accept that as a reason, although he did note that both he and Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln lost leadership races after the three earlier victories by Lancaster County senators.

Fowler did say he also has "a vague sense that some of the older members of the Legislature felt threatened by some of the issues I have raised."

Other senators privately mentioned reports that Fowler helped a candidate or two in other legislative districts including one who ousted a longtime incumbent last November.

Looking to the bright side, Fowler said he was pleased to be elected to membership on the Legislative Council's executive board and the Committee on Administrative Agency Rules and Regulations.

I guess we could say today was a draw," he suggested.

Later Fowler was named by the Committee on Committees to a position on the prestigious Appropriations Committee.

2 senators sworn in in hospitals

United Press International
William Brennan of Omaha and Herbert Dues of Gothenburg Wednesday were sworn in as newly elected state senators but neither were in Lincoln for the ceremony.

Brennan, who was taken to Bergan Mercy Hospital in Omaha for treatment of pneumonia, was sworn in by Douglas County District Court Judge Donald Hamilton, a longtime friend. The ceremony took place in the hospital corridor outside the new senator's room. Dues, who was re-elected to the Legislature, is being treated at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., for an inflammation of tissues. He was to be sworn in before a judge at Rochester.

Sen. Marsh wants women sworn in, too

Associated Press

Women's justice was the first issue raised on the opening day of the Nebraska Legislature. State Supreme Court Chief Justice Paul White asked the "gentlemen" to raise their hands and take the legislative oath of office.

"Sir, sir, me too?" asked Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln. White apparently didn't hear, and administered the oath to the males and Sens. Marsh, JoAnn Maxey and Bernice Labedz. After the oath, Sen. Marsh asked White to include female senators in future swearing-in ceremonies. He assented.
